REPAIRS TO COST THOUSANDS

Charles D. Peterson of Fairmont, Minn., looks over the damage in his basement recreation room. The car, driven by Richard E. Kruger, jumped a curb, hit a light pole, went 200 feet further, crashed through Peterson's wall and landed on top of the piano. Peterson is a piano dealer. Kruger was unhurt, but damage to the house was several thousand dollars and the car was a total loss.

CONGRESS SPEEDS UP

. . . Space, Rent, Slum Cuts Softened

Washington (AP)—House and Senate moved with a burst of speed Thursday on stymied money bills, sending President Johnson softened cuts in funds for space and for his rent subsidy and model cities programs.

And the House approved a pay raise for 3.5 million servicemen ranging from $112 a month for four-star generals to $5 for privates. It would be retroactive to Oct. 1 if the Senate accepts that date.

May Avert Showdown

The stepped-up action on money bills for the fiscal year that began July 1 could head off a showdown between House and Senate over trying to direct Johnson to shrink spending by several billion dollars rather than Congress specify where cuts should be made.

The Senate Wednesday rejected such a provision the House had tied to a resolution designed to permit federal agencies to function until Congress passes their appropriations bill.

A 30-minute meeting of Senate-House conferees Thursday on the question brought no agreement and they set another meeting for Friday.

In addition to the 11 money bills that have cleared the House, four others are still pending—including controversial antipoverty and foreign aid funds.

$4.6 Billion For Space

Voice votes in the Senate Thursday sent to the White House bills appropriating:

—$4.6 billion for the space program, $400 million under Johnson's request. Senators were assured a relatively small $15.5 million addition would permit continuation of several future space programs previously rejected by the House.

—$2.16 billion for the State, Justice and Commerce Departments and the federal judiciary and related agencies.

—$10.14 billion for the Department of Housing and Urban Development and several independent agencies. Included was $10 million of the $40 million Johnson asked for his rent subsidy program and $312 million of the $662 million he sought for the model cities program.

The House had twice refused to vote rent supplement funds. And the House had wanted to give the model cities program only $237 million compared to $537 million the Senate voted. The compromise was an administration victory.

The Senate passed the bill, including the rent subsidy and model cities, shortly after the House approved it 295 to 88.

On the rent subsidy compromise, the House vote was 198 to 184 with 45 Democrats and 139 Republicans opposing giving more funds to the program. It was backed by 163 Democrats and 35 Republicans.

The House also passed and sent to the Senate a $13.25-billion bill for the Labor and Welfare Department. It is about $170 million less than Johnson asked, but it omits 13 Senate-voted increases totaling about $20 million over budget requests.

The Senate scheduled a vote for Friday to send the Labor-Welfare appropriation to the White House.

Record Crowd At K St. Hails Reagan War Talk

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Manhattan, Kan. — Gov. Ronald Reagan, steadfastly denying any presidential ambitions, came to Kansas Thursday and was cheered mightily by a record university crowd of 14,500 when he urged the U.S. to use its "full power" in Vietnam.

Reagan, delivering an Alf Landon Lecture at Kansas State University, attracted what KSU officials described as the largest crowd ever assembled indoors in Kansas to hear an address.

All 10,000 seats in KSU's fieldhouse were filled, and thousands more stood under the balconies.

Freedom

Reagan sounded the theme of his "Creative Society" and pleaded the case for individual freedom in his informal lecture. Then came the questions.

Asked for his views on Vietnam by a KSU student from Alameda, Calif., the governor said he had only one criticism of U.S. policy.

"Once you commit men" to fight and die in a war, he said, "then you have a moral obligation to throw the full power and resources of the nation behind those young men."

Standing Ovations

Reagan had hardly finished his answer when he was greeted by a boisterous standing ovation.

Asked if he is "willing" to accept the GOP presidential nomination if it is offered to him next year, Reagan ducked adroitly.

The fact that his name has been linked with the presidency is "gratifying and thrilling," and he is "proud" to be so considered, he said.

Discouraging

"But I'm not lifting a finger to encourage it and I'm doing a great deal to discourage it around the country.

"I am not a candidate," he declared.

That disclaimer drew scattered applause from persons in the audience who apparently were less than enthusiastic about Reagan as a presidential prospect.

Reagan said he looks for a Republican presidential victory in 1968, and he believes the party will unite behind its nominee. As for himself, he said, "I will support whomever is the choice of the party."

GOP unity has "come a long way since 1964," he noted.

Society Issue

In response to other questions, the California chief executive said "the cracking apart of our society" could be the major issue in 1968, and demanded that government use "whatever force is necessary to stop riots in the streets."

Reagan said that while some urban violence has been spontaneously born from impatience and a desire for equal opportunity, other violence has been "deliberate . . . and that kind must be met head-on."

As Reagan spoke, a sign held by a student a few rows in front of him proclaimed: "Reagan for President." In the balcony behind the governor, another banner suggested: "Reagan for Fuhrer."

Liz Backed

In the back of the fieldhouse fluttered another sign urging: "Liz Taylor for Secretary of State."

A number of KSU students distributed thousands of flowers at the fieldhouse entrances, and issued a "Flower Power Press Release," calling for "more love in America and the world."

Pleased with the generally enthusiastic reception, Reagan told the throng that "nothing could be more gratifying except to get an honorary degree from Berkeley."

Rebellious

In his Landon lecture, Reagan suggested that "the cleavage between generations" in America has not resulted from youth's rebellion against established standards.

"No, you are rebellious, and justifiably so, because we're not living up ourselves to what we taught you," he insisted. "It's a little late for us. But if you want a cause, that's your cause."

Youth can help find the answers to contemporary American problems, including poverty, prejudice, crime and increasing welfare rolls, the governor said.

Initiative

Reagan rejected those "who would turn the country back to the Dark Ages or ahead to 1984," suggesting that individual initiative, innovation and genius are more likely to resolve America's problems than "a governmental framework tending ever more toward the welfare state and centralism."

Therefore, he suggested, the great preoccupation of American colleges and universities should be the fulfillment of the individual.

Soviets Push Public Health

New York Times Service

By WALTER SULLIVAN

The surgeon was a woman and she worked with skill and speed. Yet the visiting American surgeon at her elbow was less fascinated by her performance than by her earrings.

They stuck through her sterile cap and mask, wiggling with each movement. As he watched them dangle perilously over the gaping body cavity he thought, "What if one of them drops!"

The same American surgeon saw flies in a "sterile" operating theater in a good Moscow hospital. Yet he spoke with admiration of the new Soviet surgical tools — instruments that quickly staple two severed blood vessels together or repair a damaged eye.

Marked by Past

Soviet medicine is marked by contrast but an understanding of Soviet medicine today is meaningful only when viewed against the backdrop of the past.

When the Soviet state was formed in 1917 there was a gross lack of public health facilities. The need to develop a health service that would bring at least moderately professional care to a vast country demanded special measures, such as the training of feldshers — men and women with less than a full medical education to deal with routine problems.

World War II has left its mark in the dominance of Soviet medicine by women. The war decimated the male population and diverted from medicine the men who today would have been experienced physicians and surgeons.

Reflects Early Goal

The organization of medicine still reflects its early goal of broad service. The basic treatment center is the polyclinic. It may be in a factory, a school, or a large block of apartment houses. Every citizen, from birth, has a medical card and is assigned a physician at his local polyclinic.

Eleventh in a Series

He can change doctors if he wishes, but must submit a request in writing. The more well-to-do can seek out a physician of high repute and pay him a private fee. Otherwise medical care is free, apart from drugs purchased for home use.

The staff of a city polyclinic consists, typically, of four specialists in internal medicine, two surgeons, two gynecologists, a pathologist, a radiologist, and a specialist in disorders of eyes, ears, nose, throat, and skin, plus various auxiliaries.

While general hospitals handle all types of cases, the remarkable feature of the Soviet system is the emphasis

Crete Teacher, Frank Mills, Named President-Elect Of NSEA District I

By LUCILLE HOWARD
Star Staff Writer

Frank Mills of Crete Thursday was chosen president-elect of District I of the Nebraska State Education Association at its annual convention here.

Mills, a vocal music instructor in the junior and senior high schools, defeated Waverly Supt. Dr. Carol Seevers for the district's top position for 1968-69.

Verl Scott of Seward will succeed Allan Hansen of Lincoln as the district president for 1967-68.

Announcement of the newly elected officers came at the end of the first day of the two-day teachers' convention headquartered at Pershing Auditorium. A total of 4,210 NSEA members registered Thursday in addition to some 300 guests.

Elected secretary for District I was Mrs. Doris Harris of York. Buren Thomas of Lincoln, an algebra teacher at Northeast High School, was named treasurer.

Lonnie Johnson of Lincoln, who also is president of the Lincoln Education Association, was voted onto the NSEA executive committee.

Named to planning committees were Mrs. Reba M. Kuklin of Lincoln and Harlan Just of York, junior high; and Miss Joann Stamm of Lincoln, Mrs. Eunice Bogle of Crete and Robert Myers of Geneva, elementary.

Members also approved constitutional revisions during the voting.

The thousands of teachers here for the two-day meeting circulated through numerous educational exhibits, viewing new textbooks, audio-visual equipment and materials and other kinds of teaching aides.

Sectional meetings and luncheons held throughout the city were crowded with the visiting and local educators, listening to guest speakers and learning new teaching techniques.

Elementary programs on reading and language arts proved to be the most popular during both of the session hours as many teachers were turned away from rooms that were full.

Several who could not get into desired meetings joined tours of the new East Educational Complex.

Also crowded were presentations on elementary art, including groups on tissue paper and paper folding.

The general session Thursday morning featured noted author Bel Kaufman who wrote "Up the Down Staircase" and Mrs. Margaret S. Woods, a lecturer on creative education at Seattle Pacific College.

Friday Dr. George Walter of Lawrence College and Nebraska Penal Complex Warden Maurice Sigler will highlight the morning general session.

Diversion Payments Set For Feed Grains Again

New York Times Service

Washington — The administration moved Thursday to bolster farm prices further.

Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman announced that the government was returning next year to its 1961-66 policy of paying farmers for taking corn and other feed grain acreage out of production.

This could mean that cooperating farmers would receive about $300 million in federal payments for planting less of the raw material for making meat and dairy products.

Follows Wheat Cut

The 1968 feed grain program follows a similar cut in wheat to raise prices and enable farmers to beat rising production costs.

Diversion payments were abandoned for 1967. The administration had sought to increase production to meet domestic and foreign needs when surplus stocks were whittled down by earlier diversion programs.

Production of wheat and feed grains soared, however, and coincided with improved world grain conditions.

'Cross And Contrary'

Freeman told newsmen that he still found farmers "cross and contrary," the same as last year when farm prices started to slide.

Farm officials said the projected cut in production should not cause any rise in the retail price of food for the foreseeable future. The wheat and corn crops are nearly a year away.

The administration's target is the idling of 30 million acres of feed grain land, including corn, sorghum, oats and barley.

Total of 30 Million

About 20 million acres were idle this year under a limited payment system; now, the administration wants to idle 10 million more acres for a total of 30 million. Freeman said this would change this year's two to three per cent overproduction to two to three per cent underproduction next year.

Under the new program, farmers will be required to divert 20% of their feed grain acreage in order to qualify for price supports. In addition, land taken out of production in excess of the 20%, up to 50% of a farmers's feed-grain acreage, will also be eligible for diversion payments.

The payments will be slightly higher this year, averaging nationally about $48 an acre. This compares with about $46.50 last year.

Freeman said the program's cost was expected to be about the same as last year, $1.5 billion. The additional cost of diversion payments, he said, would be offset by less feed grains being taken over by the government under the federal price support system.

Egypt Says Planes Fly Over Suez

By The Associated Press

Egypt charged that several Israeli planes Thursday flew over the port of Suez, but were driven off by antiaircraft fire.

Israel reported its planes were patrolling the east bank of the Suez Canal but said nothing about their flying over Suez on the west bank.

Despite the blasting of two refineries in Suez by Israeli artillery Tuesday, an Egyptian government spokesman declared no retaliation is planned against Israel. The refineries produced three-fourths of Egypt's petroleum products.

Egypt 'Has Faith'

"We have faith in world public opinion and the United Nations Charter and we do not believe in revenge," he said in a statement. "We would resort to violence only as a last measure."

At the same time, the semi-official Mideast News Agency carried a report from the transport and oil ministry that Egypt had stored enough petroleum products to last several months.

The ministry said crude production in the oil fields on the Red Sea is continuing at the rate of 104,000 barrels a day. But he did not say how the crude could be refined.

Thant Presses Plan

The Suez Canal, the cease-fire front after the June war, remained quiet. But in fear of further outbreaks of fighting, U.N. Secretary-General U Thant pressed his plan to beef up the U.N. truce observers in the Middle East.

He wants the 43 observer force now spread along both sides of the canal increased to 90. He also wants four small boats to patrol the canal and four helicopters to increase observation mobility.

"It won't work," said an Israeli at the United Nations. "It all depends on the will toward peace on the part of the parties concerned. It makes no difference how many men they have."

No Problem?

However, an Israeli foreign ministry spokesman in Tel Aviv said he saw no difficulty in increasing the U.N. observer force, then added: "There would have to be agreement on both sides first."

In London, qualified authorities said Britain and Egypt had agreed provisionally to resume diplomatic relations within a month or so. Some said the agreement could be jeopardized if the Israeli-Egyptian fighting escalates because Egypt then might reexamine its position. Egypt broke relations in 1965.

Prime Minister Harold Wilson told the House of Commons the closing of the canal costs Britain $56 million a month. But Egypt has said it will not reopen the canal as long as Israeli troops man the east bank.

Lincoln Gets First Snowfall Of The Season

Some eastern Nebraska points had their first snowfall of the season Thursday, through it was light and mixed with rain in most areas.

At mid-morning, the U.S. Weather Bureau reported that the ground was covered with snow in Wayne.

Late in the afternoon, the Weather Bureau reported one inch of snow at Winside and one-half inch at Pilger. Omaha, Norfolk, Meadow Grove and other eastern Nebraska and western Iowa points reported measurable amounts.

The heaviest amount was in the northeast with South Sioux City reporting one inch.

Lincoln's combined rain and snow precipitation for Thursday was .07. The Lincoln Weather Bureau estimated that approximately one year in 10, the city has a measurable snowfall by Oct. 29.

The earliest snow on record in Lincoln was .01 on Oct. 10, 1932 and the heaviest October was 5.5 inches on Oct. 31, 1941.

The national weather outlook for Friday indicated showers gradually becoming mixed with and turning to snow in areas from the lower Mississippi Valley to the upper Midwest.

Yanks Bag Two MIGs; Hanoi Power Plant Hit

World News

Saigon (AP) — American jet pilots tangled with at least six MIGs in swirling dogfights during raids on Hanoi Thursday and reported shooting down two of the Soviet-built interceptors.

The U.S. planes pounded Hanoi's electricity power plant 1.1 miles north of the center of the city and also hit a truck park five miles to the south.

Hanoi's official Vietnam News Agency declared 12 American planes were shot down, 10 over Hanoi. It reported some fliers bailed out and were captured.

'Wanton'

"American planes came in many waves and wantonly bombed and strafed heavily populated quarters in the heart of the capital and its outskirts," the broadcast dispatch said.

There was no immediate comment from American authorities.

The U.S. pilots said they shot down one MIG just north of the Red capital and the second MIG south of it.

Ground Encounter

In South Vietnam, a large-scale ground engagement was reported by South Vietnamese troops operating 70 miles north of Saigon.

A government spokesman said South Vietnamese forces killed an estimated 100 Viet Cong and captured 61 weapons in fighting near Phuoc Binh, a provincial capital. Government casualties were termed light.

In the Gulf of Tonkin off North Vietnam, a rocket motor exploded aboard the U.S. aircraft carrier Coral Sea and injured nine crewmen, one critically.

Elsewhere, B52 bombers struck Friday morning before dawn on the Mu Gia Pass, North Vietnam's main mountain gateway to the Ho Chi Minh infiltration trail to the south.

Now 92 MIGs

The two MIGs shot down around Hanoi raised to 92 the number of enemy interceptors claimed by American pilots in the war's air-to-air combat.

One MIG, an advanced model MIG21, was shot down 22 miles south-southeast of Hanoi by a Navy Phantom jet. The other MIG was a slower MIG17 shot down 17 miles north-northwest of Hanoi by an Air Force Phantom, part of a strike force that jumped a flight of six MIG17s.

In both cases, American pilots reported seeing the MIGs dive earthward in uncontrolled spirals and said both the enemy pilots bailed out.

2 Spans Cut

Reconnaissance showed a raid Wednesday on the Paul Doumer Bridge, which carried railway and highway traffic across the Red River between Hanoi and the Gia Lam suburbs, cut two of its spans.

A raid Aug. 11 dropped one span into the river, but repair crews were reported to have had the bridge back in operation in less than six weeks.

Results of the latest attack on the Hanoi power plant, hammered by squadrons from the carrier Oriskany, were not immediately known.

PAIR OF PRESIDENTS

President Johnson escorted Mexican President Gustavo Diaz Ordaz to Blair House, the official U.S. guest house, after welcoming ceremonies Thursday at the White House.

Bill Approved To Develop Commercial-Free Television

Washington (UPI) — The Senate Thursday gave final congressional approval to a bill aimed at spurring development of commercial-free television in the United States.

Passed by voice vote and sent to the White House for President Johnson's signature was the 1967 Public Television Act.

Under it, a Public Television Corp. would be created to help finance programs for a growing chain of education and television stations.

$9 Million Seed

The measure authorizes an initial $9 million federal grant for the corporation's first year of operation. Johnson, who proposed the measure, is expected to submit proposals next year for long-range financing.

Financing proposals discussed so far have included a federal sales tax on television sets and using profits from a satellite broadcast services to help finance the corporation.

Eventually, the corporation may need $270 million annaully. The bill would provide $38 million for a three-year program of federal aid for improving and expanding educational television outlets.

15 Appointees

The corporation, made up of 15 presidential appointees, would finance production of programs and transmission to broadcasting stations. Programs would range from documentaries to plays and vocational training.

The corporation could deal with private carriers to set up network connections for some programs.

Local stations under the bill would be prohibited from broadcasting editorials. The limitation would not affect public affairs programming.

Amnesty For Red Prisoners Possible During Celebration

© New York Times Service

Moscow—Tens of thousands of persons held in Soviet prisons and labor camps are expected to be released soon under an amnesty in honor of the 50th anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution.

The imminence of an amnesty was hinted Thursday by Aleksandr F. Gorkin, chairman of the Soviet Supreme Court. Replying to a question at a news conference, Grokin said that, under Soviet law, an amnesty was a matter for the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet (parliament) but then he quickly added:

"As far as the Supreme Court is concerned, we have spoken out favorably on the question of an amnesty. We regard it as desirable."

The Supreme Soviet will convene in the Kremlin Nov. 3 for a jubilee session four days before the anniversary.

Gorkin's public endorsement of an amnesty was regarded as virtually an explicit confirmation of reports that one was forthcoming. It was uncertain however whether the amnesty would apply to Andrei D. Sinyavsky and Yuli M. Daniel, the writers convicted early in 1966 of antiSoviet propaganda.

Gorkin appeared to rule out their release from a labor camp, declaring that an amnesty should not apply to persons guilty of "especially dangerous crimes."

Amnesties on major anniversaries are an old tradition in Russia. There have been several since the death of Stalin in 1953, when millions of people were held in labor camps for offenses ranging from the telling of anecdotes about the dictator to collaboration with German invaders during World War II.

One amnesty several weeks after Stalin died was a near disaster. Hundreds of thousands of criminals were released and terrorized Soviet cities for months until the worst offenders were recaptured.

Saturn Soars Nov. 7

Cape Kennedy, Fla. (AP)—The National Aeronautics and Space Administration Thursday officially set Nov. 7 as the target launching date for the first Saturn 5 rocket.

The announcement said that is the earliest possible date for launching the 363-foot-tall rocket on its maiden test flight, during which it is to hurl an unmanned Apollo moon ship into space.

In setting the goal, however, NASA emphasized that the complexity of the rocket and launch equipment are liable to force delays beyond that date.

Officials noted that a recent countdown demonstration which was to have lasted 83 hours actually covered 16 days. Several problems, most of them minor and involving new, previously untried equipment, caused the delays.

As a result, some procedures have been changed and the final countdown period has been stretched from 83 to 104 hours.

Before the practice countdown started, the target date had been Oct. 24.

The Saturn 5 is the largest, most powerful rocket ever built. The maiden test flight will be the first of a series to qualify it to launch American astronauts to the moon.

If all goes well, the rocket will boost the Apollo 11,400 miles into space. From there, the spacecraft will propel itself back through the atmosphere at lunar return speed of nearly 25,000 miles an hour. Recovery will be attempted in the Pacific Ocean.

1st Infantry's Battle Hikes Casualties

Saigon (AP) — The U.S. command disclosed Thursday that American casualties rose slightly last week over the toll for the Oct. 8-14 reporting period, primarily as a result of a bloody fight between elements of the 1st Infantry Division and the Viet Cong's 271st Regiment 40 miles northwest of Saigon.

Spokesmen said that in all 193 Americans were killed in action, 949 wounded and seven missing or captured, as against 171 dead, 977 wounded and two missing in the previous week.

The U.S. losses more than doubled those reported by South Vietnam's armed forces: 81 killed, 355 wounded and two missing.

Enemy dead were listed as 1,227, down more than 300 from a revised total of 1,562 for the week before.

Field reports at the time of the battle northwest of Saigon Oct. 17, said 103 Viet Cong and 58 American infantrymen were killed. Officers said about 40 Americans wounded in that engagement later died.

Unofficial tabulations now list 14,100 Americans killed, 89,451 wounded and 791 missing or captured in the war since 1961. In addition 2,822 men have died of accidents, illness and other such causes, 37 last week.

Living Cost Nicks Pay Gains Again

Washington (AP) — Living costs continued to outclimb record-setting pay gains for most Americans last month and gave President Johnson further argument for a tax increase, the government reported Thursday.

The 0.2% rise in consumer prices, plus steadily rising costs of industrial raw materials, "corroborate the need for a tax increase," said Labor Statistics Commission Arthur M. Ross.

Although the September rise in living costs was the smallest for any month since March, it capped six months of price hikes. This six-month increase hit an annual rate greater than that in 1966—and 1966 set a 15-year record high.

"We do have a definite acceleration," Ross said in reporting that the bureau's consumer price index rose to 117.1. The figure means it cost $11.71 to purchase typical family needs that cost $11.69 the month before and $10 in the 1957-59 period used as the base of the index.

Living costs were up 2.6% from September of last year, edging ahead of the 2.5% rise in average wages that reached a record high of $103.41 per week for 45.6 million U.S. workers last month. The purchasing power of the average worker with three dependents was down 48 cents a week over the year, the bureau said.

While there was some good news in lower food prices, Ross emphasized the darker side of the price picture as he has done since Johnson's proposed 10% income tax surcharge bogged down in Congress several months ago.

False Teeth Help Prevent Accident

Springfield, Mo. (AP)—Charles M. Armstrong, 31, says his false teeth probably prevented a bullet from entering his head.

The bullet hit his upper denture and he spat it out.

Pope, Patriarch Vow To Conquer Discord

Vatican City (AP)—Pope Paul VI and Orthodox Patriarch Athenagoras exchanged the kiss of peace in St. Peter's Basilica on Thursday and vowed to overcome the differences between their churches to help reunite all Christianity.

The first leader of the world's Orthodox Christians ever to make a pilgrimage to the headquarters of Roman Catholicism, Athenagoras prayed with the Pope in a ceremony marking another step toward ending nine centuries of division.

"Our hearts are filled with the sure hope that the whole Catholic Church and the whole Orthodox Church in a common accord and with a sense of responsibility, will move toward union," said Athenagoras as the walls of the basilica resounded with applause.

Tears In Eyes

Pope Paul, his eyes welling with tears, asked in his replying speech whether "the contemporary world, filled with unbelief in many forms, does not also give us a reminder of the need we have for unity for each other?"

The two church leaders met for the third time in the drive for unity. They had embraced in Jerusalem three years ago and in Istanbul last July.

They made a striking pair sitting side by side in Christianity's largest church. The Pope looked frail in his white robes and red cloak. The patriarch, under his tall black hat, towered over his prayer book.

White Beard

Referring indirectly to their differences, the silver-bearded patriarch said churches must "intensify and continue the dialogue of charity so as to make it precede a theological dialogue."

He also recognized that Rome is 'the seat which is first by honor and order in the organism of Christian churches around the world."

Shah Crowns Self Amidst Splendor

Tehran, Iran (AP)—In a burst of Oriental splendor, the shah of Iran crowned himself Thursday on his 48th birthday in a ceremony he delayed for 26 years after he picked up the royal scepter.

To the thunder of 101-gun salutes, the roar of airplanes dropping roses, the blaring of bugles and chants from the Koran, Mohammed Reza Shah Pahlevi took his seat on the fabled Peacock Throne and put on an egret-plumed crown with 3,755 jewels.

Weighed down by a pearl-embroidered cape, a golden emerald girdle and a diamond studded sword, the shah raised a second crown-made in Paris-and placed it on the head of his radiant 29-year-old empress, Farah. Her crown has 1,469 diamonds and 177 rubies, emeralds and pearls.

In the shah's Middle Eastern realm, where women until recently have been second-class subjects shrouded in veils, Farah was the first Iranian empress ever to receive a crown.

The newly crowned King of Kings and Light of the Aryans proclaimed from the throne:

"My deepest wish is to preserve the independence and sovereignty of the country, to raise the Iranian nation to the level of the world's most progressive and prosperous societies, and to renew the ancient grandeur of this historic land. In this task as in the past I will withhold nothing, not even my life."

The shah declared the double crowning made him "feel closer than ever before to my noble and patriotic people."

"I beseech Almighty God to grant us success so that we will be able to pass on to our successors a country with a yet greater cause for pride."

8 White Horses

Police and 7,500 imperial troops lined the 11-mile route to the old Golestan Palace to hold back shouting crowds estimated to number more than half a million from the royal couple's blue and gold bullet-proof coronation coach. It was drawn by eight white Hungarian horses.

The shah called Iran, formerly Persia, the world's oldest monarchy. It dates back 2,513 years to Cyrus the Great. But the shah's own dynasty began only in 1926 when his father, a barely literate Cossack officer, crowned himself with the then 7-year-old shah by his side.

At the shah's own side was his son, Crown Prince Reza, 7 years old next week, surrounded by generals and chamberlains but behaving calmly in the regal tumult. He is the heir for whose birth the shah delayed his coronation, after divorcing Princess Soraya because she failed to give him a son.

The 88-year-old Golestan Palace, its mirrored and crystal throne room glittering like the inside of a giant diamond, held 530 selected guests in white tie, tails and formal gowns.

The dazzling assembly included diplomats courtiers, ministers, the imperial family and 12 boyhood friends from the shah's school days in Switzerland, including Karim Aga Khan and the Begum.

The crumbling palace opposite Tehran bazaar was rebuilt for the occasion. A grandstand for 5,500 more guests was erected in the garden outside.

Crashes Fatal To 4 Persons

. . . Schuyler Accident On Slick Road

From Press Dispatches

Four more persons have lost their lives in separate crashes on Nebraska's highways.

The latest victims were identified as:

Arthadius P. Wolodekewitsch, 27, Omaha.

Carl O. Soneson, 66, Holdrege.

Mrs. Robert Ackland, 28, Geneva.

Lawrence W. Brass, 28, Ovid, Colo.

Wolodekewitsch was killed about noon Thursday on rain slickened U.S. 30 five miles west of Schuyler.

Authorities said an eastbound cattle truck collided with the Omahan's westbound car.

Trucker In Hospital

The truck left the highway and overturned in the ditch. The driver, Fred Oertwig, 47, of Kearney was hospitalized in Schuyler with broken ribs and pelvis. His companion, Warren Reynolds, also of Kearney, suffered only minor injuries and was not hospitalized.

The truck carried 34 head of cattle. Two head were killed and a third had to be destroyed because of injuries.

Soneson was killed Thursday morning when the truck he was driving was struck by a Burlington freight train at a crossing in Holdrege.

Phelps County Attorney Clarke Noble said the train's engineer was John Burns of McCook. The conductor, Russ Dowling of McCook, told Noble the train was traveling about 60 miles an hour.

Soneson was president of the Phelps County Fair Board. He is survived by his wife, two sons and two daughters.

Tractor Overturned

A Wednesday afternoon tractor accident claimed the life of Mrs. Ackland. She died Wednesday night in a Geneva hospital of injuries suffered when the tractor she was driving overturned into a ditch near her rural Geneva home. She was pinned beneath the vehicle.

Mrs. Ackland is survived by her husband, four sons and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Richert of Geneva.

Brass died in a Hastings hospital Thursday of injuries suffered last Sunday in a traffic accident near Sargent.

The State Patrol said the accident occurred just south of Sargent on Highway 183. The patrol said Brass was the driver of a north bound car which was in a sideswipe collision with cars driven by Randall C. Coslor, 19, and Jerry D. Grause, 23, both of Sargent.

The deaths bring Nebraska's 1967 traffic toll to 354, compared with 348 at this time last year.

On that date, the institute will celebrate its 25th anniversary by dedicating a new $500,000 three-level student center.

Near $1,909 Taken From Murray Bank

Murray (AP)—Burglars took $1,909.34 in small change from the vault of the Murray State Bank during the night, bank president Charles Boedeker reported Thursday.

Boedeker said there was no currency in the vault. The bank's currency is kept in a safe with a time lock.

Nebraska News

He said it appeared the burglars had jimmied a side door of the bank. They then punched a hole about two feet in diameter through the 30-inch vault wall from a rest room in the back of the building.

Dale Wohlfarth, cashier, said he discovered the burglary when he entered the bank about 7:45 a.m.

FBI agents from Omaha and Cass County Sheriff Fred Tesch were continuing an investigation.

Murray, with a population of 279, is located in Cass County a few miles south of Plattsmouth.

Job Corps Pair Held On Suspicion Of Marijuana Sale

Police were holding two Lincoln Job Corps teenagers Friday morning, who were arrested on suspicion of possession and sale of marijuna Thursday evening, police said.

Local authorities said that two Lincoln detectives along with members from Job Corps security, the State Division of Drug Control Safety Patrol, arrested the two teenagers at the Job Corps Center while the transfer of the marijuna was in process.

Authorities also said that they seized approximately one pound of marijuana that was picked by one of the teenagers during the arrest.

Police said that charges may be brought against the teenagers following a review of the case by County Attorney Paul Douglas Friday morning.

Teachers Conventions . . .

'Unlovability LBJ's Major Handicap'

Norfolk (AP) — Should President Johnson decide not to seek another term, Sen. Robert Kennedy, D-N.Y., will get the Democratic nomination, a radio-television political correspondent predicted here Thursday.

Sander Vanocur of the National Broadcasting Co. addressed 1,785 teachers attending the District 3 teachers convention.

"I don't know if Johnson will run," he said. "But if he does, his big problem will not be Vietnam, but himself as a person. His major political handicap will be his own unlovability.

"I'm not saying Johnson won't win if he runs next year, but his real problem will be his personality."

Vancour said if the President decides to retire, "the choice of his successor will be taken out of his control. And then I don't see how anyone could prevent Robert Kennedy from getting it."

He predicted Govs. Ronald Reagan and Nelson Rockefeller would battle it out for the Republican nomination.

Friday's convention speakers will include Dr. Frank McIntyre, former dean of Norfolk Junior College, and John Ciardi, poetry editor of the Saturday Review of Literature.

Face Problem Impact Seen On 1968 Political Campaign

Kearney (AP) — An estimated 3,000 teachers attending a district meeting of the Nebraska Education Association in Kearney Thursday heard Negro columnist Carl T. Rowan, former director of the U.S. Information Agency, warn that the problem of race relations could have a greater impact on next year's political campaign than the war in Vietnam.

Rowan said the main problem continued to be a lack of communication between Negroes and whites.

"A Negro can be a Cabinet member or a federal judge, but still many whites can go to their private clubs where they can thumb their noses at Negroes."

He declared that America's cities are a mess and will continue to be so until the suburbs and clubs and the like are as integrated as Hill 881 in Vietnam.

The teachers were urged to use their influence and teaching to bring about better race relations and to avoid a confrontation, because "there can be no winner in a confrontation of America's 90% white population and 10% Negro population."

Judge Rules Klatt Incapable Of Standing Trial Right Now

Broken Bow (AP)—Rudy Klatt of Anselmo cannot stand trial at this time for the slaying of his half brother last May 7, District Judge William F. Manasil has ruled.

Klatt was scheduled to go on trial at the term of court starting Monday for the shotgun slaying of Frank Spanel at the Spanel ranch last May.

But after reviewing reports of two psychiatrists called by the defense and a pyschologist called by the state, Judge Manasil ruled Klatt incapable of assisting his counsel in his own defense and unable to understand the nature of the proceedings.

Sen. To State Hospital

He ordered Klatt committed to the maximum security ward of the State Hospital in Lincoln, but declared if he is ever released from the hospital he must be returned to Custer County for trial.

Klatt was taken to Omaha Sept. 9 for the psychiatric evaluation and returned to Broken Bow Sept. 19.

The psychiatrists' report declared Klatt is dangerous and should be confined. Dr. J. Whitney Kelly of Omaha diagnosed his illness as paranoid schizophrenia.

EVENTS

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

Never before, perhaps, have teachers of this area gathered in convention together under more challenging circumstances. Their challenge is to give meaning to the society in which we live at a time when that society is afflicted with many uncertainties.

It is not enough that the young people under the guidance of teachers become familiar with the rudiments of basic learning and the fundamentals of math, history, English, chemistry, etc. There are those who would guide our educational system too heavily in the direction of training for a career at the sacrifice of pure academics.

There are those, too, who believe just the opposite—that our educational system must become more firmly rooted in the theoretical and the abstract. For one thing, it is up to educators to see to it that a proper balance is struck between all interests.

But when all the mechanics of curriculum and all the organization of staff and schedules have been completed, the system rises or falls on the single classroom teacher and the pupils in his or her room. Any teacher can train a given number of pupils but how many can inspire them to a never-ending search for the truth?

It is one thing to secure a passing effort from a group that is captive to what you have to offer but it is another thing to motivate the group toward realization of its potential. Young men and women of today are asking a lot of questions that teachers can help answer.

They seek in their school as well as other pursuits a purpose in life and meaning to the system we have handed them, as others handed it to us. There was a time when this handing down from one generation to the next was sufficient but it does not suffice today.

There was once a discipline of mind and body which brought compliance with the social order in which you lived but such is not the case today. The attitude today is questioning, if not skeptical.

Teachers should make an effort to understand the attitudes and opinions of students and to make the educational system relative to the needs and demands of humanity. With students, we are not programming a computer but rather, are attempting to cultivate the mind.

We may not be able or want to teach religion in the public schools but we can relate academic life to the need for high moral standards. We may have to equip a young person to make a living in this world but we can, also, instill an appreciation for something other than the dollar.

The young person who sees a course offering only in terms of credit hours and requirements will never get from that course what it really has to offer. The learning process should also be viewed as an understanding and appreciation of life as it has transpired in the past in anticipation of greater fulfillment in the future.

The student who finds literature a bore does so because of a failure on someone else's part somewhere along the line. Either parents or teachers or both have never managed to breathe the life into literature that is there.

If history is nothing to the student but a mass of difficult names, a jumble of dates and a mixture of curious events, then the student has never found the excitement, adventure and challenge that is a part of history. The average classroom teacher might ask himself why a rather dull student can often excel in vocational courses.

It is because in the vocational course, the student has found a means of creating something, a means of making a personal contribution to the world. Every person wants to create and to contribute to society in some way.

An Absurd Election

One of the strangest — make that absurd — elections we've ever heard of will take place in Atlantic, Iowa, on Nov. 7. The voters will decide whether to continue a city-financed Dutch Elm Disease control program.

If ever there was an election that showed to what ridiculous extremes democracy can be carried, this is it. That the people should decide who runs their government is obvious. And they should be consulted on issues of overwhelming importance if there is a chance they are competent to decide. But to ask the opinion of the man in the street on Dutch Elm Disease control strikes us as an abuse of democracy.

Surely the people of Atlantic have a mayor and a town council of some sort with the facilities to hire experts to come to Atlantic and determine the best way to control the disease. From there, an educational campaign could be conducted to convince the people their officials were acting the interests of the town. If the people disagree, they have the option to kick the rascals out at the next election.

But on an issue such as Dutch Elm Disease, it should be a case of "let the experts decide," not "let the people decide." Besides, the money involved ($10,000 has been spent so far this year) is not enough for anyone to get excited about.

However, some Atlantic citizens have complaints about the spraying program, so officials threw in the towel and agreed to a vote. This is one case where the officials couldn't stand the heat so they turned the kitchen over to the public.

Atlantic is a lovely little town. Hopefully its citizens have the good sense to cast votes to fight the disease.

Patience With Violence Expiring

Racial problems in the United States provided a foundation of patience within the American people that now seems to be running out. The American people have been reluctant to come down hard in racial disturbances because they see in the plight of the Negro so much provocation.

They see in the Negro a race that has been discriminated against for centuries and they understand the unrest and impatience that seethes within the Negro. But there are those in the land who, seeing the tolerance of people in racial matters, have taken advantage of the situation. Some of these were among those taking part in the weekend protests against the war in Vietnam.

Some of these protestors heaped such abuse upon our country, our President and our law-enforcement agencies, that their remarks could not be repeated in the press. They taunted Washington law-enforcement officers and spit in the faces of soldiers standing guard at vital government installations.

There are people today running around the country openly preaching revolution, the overthrow of law and order. There are people behaving as though it is a state of anarchy in which we live. And they are encouraged because they have seen others do it and suffer no consequences.

Two Republican leaders, Senators Everett Dirksen and Gerald Ford, have called for a crackdown upon such people. Violence and lawlessness, they contend, cannot continue to be condoned and they are right. They are right and we hope something is done about it.

Hundreds were arrested in Washington, D.C., over the past weekend but they have been given small fines of about $25 and suspended jail sentences of 15 to 30 days. The weight of the law must be brought more fully to bear than this or pretty soon the law will be a laughing stock for every misfit who wants to trample it into the gutter.

Free speech and the freedom of assembly are one thing but a mockery of these freedoms and of our system of justice is another. The latter should not be permitted.

JAMES RESTON

Rocky Assumes Easy Role

NEW YORK — Nelson Aldrich Rockefeller, 59, governor of New York, has a plain office in an old flat-front house at 22 West 55th Street in Manhattan, and a hideaway in an ancient family mansion nearby. The sidewalks leading to these unmarked doorways are worn down these days by reporters wanting to know what on earth Rockefeller meant by saying, "I don't want to be president."

On the face of it, this is not really a very complicated sentence; it sounds definite and even snappy; but of course it is almost as misleading as a woman's hesitant "no."

Language and politics debase one another. Words are used not to convey but to conceal meaning, and in presidential campaigns, this innocent evasion is unavoidable.

Governors cannot avoid such questions. Suppose Rockefeller had said: "I want to be president." This would have sent a ghastly hiccup across the entire political world. George Romney would simply have blown up and vanished in a puff of hot air, and the entire right wing of the Republican party would have fallen on Rocky like a fumble.

Or suppose he had said: "I don't want it and I won't take it." That would have left the progressive cause in the Republican party to Romney and Senator Percy and probably assured the nomination of Nixon or Reagan. One gathers this is not the conclusion Rockefeller has in mind.

Besides, in defense of the governor's statement, there cannot be a man alive who does not genuinely feel much of the time that he really doesn't "want to be president," including Lyndon Baines Johnson. It is an intimidating and even a terrifying office. The crushing disappointments of ambitions and rejected men are tragic, and the spectacular accidents that often lead to success are numerous. "I was nominated by a convention that was three-fourths for the other fellow at the start," Lincoln told Alexander K. McClure, the Philadelphia editor.

In this situation candidates are often caught between the presumption of seeking the presidency and the presumption of refusing it, and ambiguous words are the devices they use to give fate time to work its mysteries.

Rockefeller, however, seems quite different from Nixon in his approach to the coming campaign. Maybe it is merely because their situations are so different: Nixon cannot afford to wait; if he is to get the nomination, he must go after it; if Rockefeller is to get it, he must wait either for a convention stalemate, or, if Nixon sweeps the early primaries, for a stop-Nixon move in the Oregon primary.

It is not at all sure, however, that he would intervene in Oregon to block Nixon. Nobody knows, probably not even Rockefeller. He does not "want" the presidency in the sense of "needing" it to satisfy a consuming ambition. He "needed" victory in the last governor's race, for he was on the ropes then and his startling comeback was a deeply felt self-justification.

But not now. He seems happier and more serene in his family life than in many years. He will be 60 a few days before the convention in Miami Beach (the same age as Johnson), and he has two very young sons. Home, therefore, holds no terrors for him, and unless the market takes a nasty turn, the chances are he will be able to enjoy a modest security.

Accordingly, he is going along in good spirit waiting for the roll of the dice, and he is not being dragged into the Vietnam thicket any more than he can help. Mention Vietnam and he talks about the larger world picture and the revolution of the cities. This almost gives the impression that he believes the Pacific and Atlantic oceans are bigger than the Gulf of Tonkin, and the security of New York and Cleveland as important as the security to Saigon.

This, however, is only an impression. He has mastered the arts of evasion on awkward questions, he will not be drawn when silence is in his interest. But at the same time he does not sound like the reluctant Adlai Stevenson of 1952. He is going to back Romney as long as George has a chance. Then he will see.

Meanwhile, he has an office to go to and one or two unfinished tasks in New York and he can watch the primaries on television. It is not an unbearable role; almost as easy, in fact, as Reagan's.

Lincoln, Neb.

Governor Tiemann seems to be attempting to reverse a national Republican trend. Leading GOP political figures such as George Murphy, Ronald Reagan and Shirley Temple Black began their careers as actors and comedians. Tiemann began as a politician and now is attempting to become a comedian.

At Norfolk last week, when asked why his office budget is 95% higher than former Governor Morrison's, Tiemann replied that his office was doing 95% more work.

That's worth a chuckle or two, but Nobby is going to have to find better writers if he hopes to match George, Ronny and Shirley in the entertainment field.

The real reason Tiemann's budget is so much higher is because his comedy writers are paid 50 to 100% more than Morrison's.

Colorado Game

Lincoln, Neb.

The gods were not with us. The boys deserved to win over Colorado, more than Kansas deserved to beat Nebraska. Shakespeare would have said, "Something is rotten in the state of Denmark."

The Cornhuskers were well coached and they played hard. We won everything but the points.

Sometimes when defeat is hard to take, it makes me think of Ella Wheeler Wilcox chanting about the spent runner "who falls with his strength exhausted almost in sight of the goal."

The only thing to do about it is to get up and try harder next Saturday.

Good luck, Cornhuskers!

Tax System

Lincoln, Neb.

Governor Norbert Tiemann seems to have abandoned the theory that Nebraska needs a balanced tax system, and in doing so seems to have parted company with his tax commissioner.

We quote from the October 17 news report on the governor's "Town Hall" meeting at Alliance.

Q: Why not a three or four per cent sales tax instead of an income tax?

Tax Commissioner McNeil: We need a balanced tax system. A sales tax is regressive.

Q: If the sales tax is regressive, why are you talking about raising it?

Governor Tiemann: In our judgment, three per cent will be necessary in 1969 to avoid an increase in the income tax rate.

From this exchange, it certainly appears that the governor avoided entirely the question about the sales tax being regressive.

And it further appears that the governor, in seeking a higher sales tax rate, is attempting to destroy the balance written into our tax system by the Legislature.

The only conclusion we can draw is that our banker-governor is interested in shifting the tax burden from the high-income persons to those with low incomes. Could it be that he is influenced by this key appointees, all of whom are making thousands of dollars more than their predecessors in the Morrison administration?

Bad News Rating Higher Than Good

NEW YORK — Why must dissent always be more newsworthy than assent? Why does anger sell more newspapers or command higher television ratings than love? Who decides that a shattered marriage, a stray case of corruption in high places, a shooting in a shoddy saloon should take precedence over the mainstreams of constancy, integrity and gentility?

Because of editors.

Well, who are these dastardly souls? Editors, alas, are you and I. Editors are common denominators, forces who feel it is their duty to sum up and dourly distill the current turmoil of life on this poor planet.

Watching last weekend's demonstrations at the Lincoln Memorial and the Pentagon on TV was a melancholy experience. God knows and apparently acknowledges that the freakiest of the demonstrators have constitutional rights to express themselves.

But I tend to wonder if, after okaying it, the treasured shapers of human rights and privileges would have truly approved or felt comfortable around the contemporary cacaphony. Whatever, the nays had it over the weekend. The nays got prime time and top display. The ayes didn't get a tumble.

But there must have been good things going on in America at the same time of the ugly scuffling at the Pentagon. There must have been things happening that moved this country a bit closer to what has been called The American Dream. Some greater number than the dissenters who were mustered must have voluntarily been busy going to school, earning a living, raising children, paying the landlord, buying a refrigerator, watching a football game, paying the baby-sitter, and supporting a country called the United States of America which has better fulfilled man's ancient hopes of a good life on earth than, say, Greece, Rome or even Britain cared to guarantee.

But these people were not on TV, nor did their names make the dispatches that in turn made the front pages. We seem to have ruled—we who are editors—that goodness is not exciting enough to be digestible or commercial.

The most receptive audience for the photographic and written accounts of last weekend's rebellions must have been Ho Chi Minh and those around him who sustain his demented belief that we are the French, all over again, and plainly headed for another political and military catastrophe at some other Dien Bien Phu.

Oddest thing about the massive demonstrations against the war is that the men fighting it are not overly distressed by this seeming lack of home front support. They don't care that the ayes don't have it in the communications media. All they care about is doing their job and getting home. From some acquaintanceship with them, I question whether they believe last weekend's emotionalism moved them as much as an inch closer to their dream. That, they know, they must accomplish on their own.

Similarity Between Lincoln's Day And Now; Abe Was Subject Of Criticism And Abuse

WASHINGTON—There's a sort of "you can't win" feeling around Washington. It must be similar to the pessimism that split the nation in Lincoln's day 103 years ago.

Outwardly Washington moves on about the way it always has — the sessions of Congress, the tourists visiting the shooting gallery at the FBI, the cocktail parties along Embassy Row, the chatter about Lynda Bird's wedding, but it's not a happy atmosphere.

The foreign diplomats, most of them friendly to the United States, talk about the war, the division in the country, the peace march. They feel depressed. Most of them represent governments which are tied to the United States economically and politically. If we get bogged down, they get bogged down too.

The October sun smiles on the maple trees turning red and gold in Lafayette Park across from the White House. But the sun carries no warmth. It can't seem to penetrate the thick walls of the White House.

Inside sits a man who looks out at the turning leaves, the fountains splashing on the south lawn—still green in the October sunshine — to the spindle of granite towering into the sky in honor of George Washington. There, near the monument grounds, have been crowds of people, most of them honest, sincere people protesting the war. He had given them permission to march, overruling some of his cabinet advisers, because he felt the right of protest must prevail.

On the other side of the White House in Lafayette Park have been more demonstrations; marching, protesting people carrying placards and strumming guitars. How tired the man gets of those guitars. Sometimes he can't sleep at night for hearing them. He can't sleep much, anyway. About 3:14 a.m. he awakens automatically—like clockwork—to get the report on bombing over North Vietnam—how many targets hit, how many planes lost, how many men captured.

He reaches for the phone alongside the big four-poster bed in which Lincoln slept. One message from Ambassador John Gronouski in Warsaw reports on his discussions with the Chinese; the usual conference, stiff and formal; no cracks opening for peace.

Another message from Ambassador Bunker in Saigon: the Canadian ambassador in Hanoi has talked to Ho Chi Minh and other members of the cabinet; they say there'll be no peace talks until after November, 1968, when there'll be a new man in the White House, a Republican president. Then, only then, will they talk peace.

The man in the big bed ponders these messages. Lying there as Lincoln must have lain, he reviews the tribulations of Lincoln.

It was in the summer of 1864 that a group of prominent Republicans organized a "Lincoln withdrawal" movement. A Senate friend said of the President: "I fear he is a failure." Lincoln himself figured he could not be re-elected.

Most of the press was dovish and critical. There was economic discontent in opposition to the war. In New York riots 1,000 people were killed or wounded. Unlike the freedom to demonstrate which the man protected recently, the rebels were subject to martial law. More than 13,000 people were arrested. Habeas corpus in many areas was suspended.

The New York Times said that all that could save us was selection of a peace commission to negotiate with Jefferson Davis.

One hundred years have passed since then. Times, mused the tall man in the long four-poster bed, have not really changed at all.

House Vote Backs Redistricting Delay

Washington (UPI) — House members fearful of running in new districts approved a bill Thursday aimed at delaying "one-man one-vote" redistricting in up to 17 states with 255 Congressmen until after 1970.

The measure, a stopgap "compromise" which was all that House and Senate conferees could agree upon, went to the Senate where Sens. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., planned to try to kill it.

The bill says that no state shall be required to redraw its Congressional districts until after the 1970 census unless a special census is taken first. Further, it says that no members shall be required to run at large. It was approved 241 to 105 on a roll call.

Chairman Emanuel Celler of the House Judiciary Committee, said it amounts to a "strong admonition" which the courts will be urged to heed but may ignore in applying the Supreme Court's order that Congressmen should generally represent the same number of people.

Ban Included

Celler said the bill would ban at large elections, except in Hawaii and New Mexico, prohibit courts from ordering legislatures to redistrict without a special census — but let courts remap districts themselves if they found it constitutionally unavoidable.

Celler listed 17 states that could be affected. Of these, he said California, Indiana and New Jersey are under court order to redistrict. Court challenges are pending in another five — Texas, Missouri, Ohio, New York and Florida.

Celler said nine more are subject to challenge on the basis of recent court rulings — Connecticut, Georgia, Iowa, Louisiana, Minnesota, Nebraska, Pennsylvania, Washington and West Virginia.

Celler said the constitutionality of the bill itself posed "a sticky question',' though he felt it was constitutional.

Conyers Pessimistic

But Rep. John Conyers Jr., D-Mich., predicted the courts would throw the legislation out, too late for Congress to try something else before next year's elections, and many members would end up doing what they fear most—running at large.

The bill originally was intended to set permanent, as well as interim, standards for congressional districts. Rep. Clark MacGregor, R-Minn., was defeated 82-283 on a move to send the measure back to the Conference Committee to add a post-1970 section.

Opening 'Jitters' Slow 'Dark At Top Of Stairs'

By MILAN WALL
Star Staff Writer

It was opening night Thursday at Nebraska Wesleyan University's Enid Miller Theatre and first night "jitters" may have caused a slow start to a play that developed some of the compassion "Dark at the Top of the Stairs" is known for by the time of the closing curtain.

The play was William Inge's 1957 portrayal of the problems surrounding tense family relationships in the home of a harness salesman during Oklahoma's 1920 oil boom.

But at times, as actions and parts lagged, the production was as shakey as the play's domestic situation is supposed to be.

'Dark On Stage'

The "dark on the stage" occasionally sparkled due to the efforts of Suzi Shugert as Flirt Conroy and Heather Craig as Lottie Lacey.

As the harness salesman's overbearing and dominating sister-in-law, Miss Craig literally exploded into the part and only occasionally misfired. And Miss Shurgert at times did equal justice to her role as a flippant, confident high school socialite.

As the death of Rennie Flood's Jewish blind date brought compassion and understanding into the Flood home for the first time following Rennie's nervous "first big date," so the players seemed to "open up" after the climax and overcome of the nervousness that hampered Acts I and II.

Performances by Sandi Rhoten as Cora Flood, Richard Schroeder as Rubin Flood, Paul Riedesel as Sonny Flood and Sue Ostlie as Reenie Flood improved in the post-climax scenes and could be classified as the highlights of Act III.

The play also featured Kevan Nye as Lottie Lacy's dull dentist husband Morris, Gordon Smith as the drinking military school cadet Punky Givens and Dennis Murphy as the Jewish suicide victim Sammy Goldenbaum.

"Dark at the Top of the Stairs" is due to run for four more performances, Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m. and Sunday afternoon at 2.

Programs For Mentally Retarded In U.S. Are 'Far Behind' Europe's

Programs for the mentally retarded in the United States are "far behind those of England and the Scandinavian countries," a Massachusetts university professor said here Thursday night.

But Dr. Gunnar Dybwad, professor of human development at Brandeis University in Massachusetts, told guests at a dinner given in his honor that although the U.S. lags behind, it has grown in leaps and bounds under former President John F. Kennedy and President Johnson.

"The legislation that they (Kennedy and Johnson) introduced in the past few years has served to enlarge the program in all respects," he said.

Focus Attention

Dybwad pointed out that one of the important changes in the mentally retarded programs here was to focus more attention on the very young.

"In past years attention or help has been offered to the child after he has reached a certain age," he said. "But now we start teaching the child at a very early age in the hope of educating him further in a vocation.

"We have also learned to be much more demanding of the child, as we have learned that the retarded child is actually more capable of learning than we gave him credit for in the past," he added.

Vocational Training

"I suggest that by increasing the retarded person's vocational training in school, we will be preparing him for the future."

But, Dybwad explained, the training must continue even after the retarded person leaves school in order to keep him up to date on any new advances in his field.

"Today, the retarded person can even learn about the complications of different types of machinery if given enough time," he said.

Dybwad emphasized that the greatest problem in teaching the retarded person is teaching him to be sociable.

Socializing

"The greatest number of retarded people who fail at their jobs don't fail because they don't understand how to work, but because they can't adjust to the socializing that may be a part of their job.

"Now we are trying to also train these people in the various 'arts' of being sociable," said Dybwad.

Dybwad will be in Nebraska for a week, consulting with University of Nebraska and University of Omaha officials about planning and organization of mental retardation programs in the state.

Tiemann: State Becoming Progressive

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Bellevue — Gov. Norbert T. Tiemann Thursday night said Nebraska, with its increased emphasis on education, economic development and mental health, is "now in the process of becoming a progressive state."

The new programs of state aid to public schools and junior colleges, together with increased budgets for higher education, will create "academic excellence" throughout the state, he told his fourth town hall meeting.

The state's new Department of Economic Development has "some solid leads" on national industrial prospects, Tiemann said, and businessmen tell him they are generally satisfied with the stability of Nebraska's new sales-income tax system.

Increasing Salaries

In mental health, the governor pointed out, the state is moving toward freeing patients from prolonged institutionalization and increasing salaries for hospital personnel.

Tiemann, speaking to 300 persons in his first metropolitan area town hall session, said the new tax system does not favor the farmer.

Exemptions which the farmer enjoys from the sales tax are matched by similar production item exemptions for businessmen, he noted.

Spending Policies

Most questions were directed at state tax and spending policies.

"Is there any danger of taxes going down in the foreseeable future?" one taxpayer asked.

In reply, State Tax Commissioner Murrell McNeil said property taxes should decrease as the sales-income tax system and state aid programs become effective.

In response to other inquiries, Tiemann said:

—The U.S. should do what is necessary to "get (the Vietnam war) over with an honorable end," including possible use of naval blockades and accelerated bombing.

—The real reason he did not attend the seaborne National Governors' Conference was because he had been warned that "the Lieutenant Governors Association put some money together and hired a torpedo boat."

—He believes current elective state offices should remain so, but there is "reasonable ground for debate" on the question of whether some of them should become appointive offices.

State Sharing

—He favors state sharing of federal tax revenue on a block-grant basis.

—He has no preference now in the 1968 Nebraska primary election, but he still believes Richard Nixon will win, although Gov. Ronald Reagan might overtake him if he campaigned actively in the state.

—He does not know what would be a proper population distribution among congressional districts, noting that the issue is now being determined in the courts and in the Congress.

One questioner wanted to know why "the handsome governor" doesn't peddle some of his home movies to television outlets so that Nebraska could compete with California and Reagan on the late television shows.

One gentleman, who appeared to be intoxicated and laughed heartily and repeatedly every time the governor praised the Legislature, left the meeting early after a brief conversation initiated by a State Patrol trooper.

Ex-State Employe Pleads Not Guilty To Embezzlement

Mrs. Sandra Noble Odle, 20, a former employe of the State Department of Agriculture, has pleaded innocent in Lancaster District Court to embezzlement.

Lancaster District Judge William Hastings set trial for the defendant for the jury term beginning Oct. 30 or as soon as the case can be reached.

Mrs. Odle, formerly of Raymond, is charged with embezzling more than $100 while employed as a clerk-typist in the department from June of 1964 to May of this year.

Carpenter Asks Session To Raise Tax

State Sen. Terry Carpenter Thursday asked Gov. Norbert T. Tiemann to call a special session of the Legislature this year to enact his proposed 3% sales tax.

The Scottsbluff legislator said this would eliminate possible financial problems next year as well as put the new tax system on a "relatively stable basis."

"The governor has indicated he might call a special session next year to increase the sales tax but this would raise the spectre of considerable political maneuvering since 1968 is an election year and 25 legislative seats are open," Carpenter said.

"The time for the special session is now—before the elections. This way no senator would feel locked in when the proposition were voted on."

Tiemann has said earlier he will urge the Legislature to increase the sales tax from 2.5% to 3% in 1969 when it is scheduled to drop to 2%.

Shooting Injures Pregnant Woman, Unborn Daughter

New Castle, Ky. (AP)—A teenage ex-convict was held Thursday for the shooting of a young mother and her unborn child.

Mrs. Ora Eversole was hit twice, one slug wounding the baby in the buttocks before emerging from the mother's back. She also was shot in the buttocks, with the bullet lodging just under the breast.

Doctors immediately delivered the baby and reported the child in "good condition despite what she has been through." The baby was one month premature.

Both were taken to a hospital at Shelbyville Wednesday night.

Charged with shooting and wounding was Roy Spriggs, 18, recently released from a federal penitentiary where he had served a term for auto theft.

Supreme Court To Be Asked To Push Up Income Tax Suit

The Nebraska Supreme Court will be asked next week to speed its consideration of the pending state income tax challenge suit by scheduling oral arguments prior to Jan. 1, a state lawyer reported Thursday.

Court sources had indicated earlier that normal scheduling would not put the oral arguments on the docket before early next year.

Assistant Atty. Gen. Richard H. Williams, noting that the tax takes effect Jan. 1, said the request to hasten oral arguments is in line with efforts to have the case adjudicated, if possible, before the tax goes into effect. Rules of the court permit such advancement of a hearing date.

Williams said he expects Ray Simmons of Fremont, attorney for plaintiffs in the case, to join in a stipulation for the earlier hearing.

The Lancaster District Court last month held the income tax portion of LB377 to be generally constitutional, except for a minor penalty provision. LB377 is the combination sales and income tax measure passed by the 1967 Legislature.

The challening lawsuit was brought by a group of persons and firms, including Philip C. Anderson and Raymond Weilage Jr., both of Crete.

Trade Trips To Take 2 To 4 Years To Reach Brick And Mortar Stage

James W. Monroe, director of the State Economic Development Department, said Thursday it could be two or four years before trade missions designed to attract industry into Nebraska reach the "brick and mortar" stage.

He said the main benefits from such trips is to find out what companies are planning to relocate and then furnish them with information on Nebraska.

Monroe commented in Lincoln after his return from a three-day trip to the National Electronics Conference in Chicago.

The group of 15 Nebraskans who went on the mission included Gov. Norbert T. Tiemann, Lt. Gov. John E. Everroad, other state officials and Nebraska businessmen.

Monroe said the group contacted about 200 companies at the conference.

He said the main selling points the group used were Nebraska's productive labor supply, especially the good female labor supply, the states's transportation system and the supply of engineers.

The next trade mission scheduled, Monroe said, is to an automotive products convention in Philadelphia, Pa., in January and then another automotive products convention in Law Vegas in February.

Courts Martial Not Changed By Pressure From General

Ft. Sheridan, Ill. (AP) — A board of military review ruled Thursday that there was no evidence to substantiate charges that Maj. Gen. Thomas H. Lipscomb used his influence on court martial proceedings to obtain heavier sentences for convicted soldiers at Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo.

The hearing, which began Oct. 11, was ordered by the U.S. Court of Military Appeals after the cases of six convicted soldiers were reviewed by that court.

The six soldiers, who were convicted on charges ranging from absence without leave to disobeying a noncommissioned officer, were serving as test cases for 66 other soldiers convicted between September, 1965, and August, 1967, the span of Gen. Lipscomb's command.

The chief witness for the six appellants was Col. John C. Starr, former staff judge advocate at the Missouri post, who noted that court martial sentences were more severe during Gen. Lipscomb's period of command.

Other witnesses testified that Col. Starr had complained to 5th Army Headquarters, at Ft. Sheridan, and to the Pentagon about alleged undue command influence of court martial proceedings.

Defense counsel for the six soldiers contended that Gen. Lipscomb urged officers sitting on military tribunals to mete out harsh sentences to improve the discipline at the base.

Gen. Lipscomb, now chief of international logistics in the Army Materiel Command, Washington, D.C., testified at the hearing that he did not exert influence over courts martial.

Former Senator Wiley Dies In Nursing Home

Philadelphia (AP)— Alexander Wiley, 83, a former, four-term U.S. Senator from Wisconsin and one-time chairman of the powerful Senate Foreign Relations Committee, died here Thursday in a Christian Science nursing home.

Officials of the High Oaks Nursing Home said Wiley, who came here after becoming ill several days ago, suffered a fatal stroke.

The spokesman said High Oaks is the closest Christian Science home to Washington, D.C., where Wiley lived with his second wife, the former Dorothy May Kydd. His first wife, the former May Jenkins, died in 1952.

The senator, who served 24 years before being defeated in 1962 by Gaylord Nelson, then Democratic governor of Wisconsin, made his mark in foreign affairs as an isolationist who later swung around to become a strong advocate of international cooperation.

Prior to the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor and U.S. entry into World War II, Wiley had supported non-intervention and opposed lend-lease and the draft.

Soviet Medical Care Is Free

on specialized institutes and on specialization in medical practice.

One result is that research is facilitated by the large numbers of cases of any one type at the specialized institutes.

Many foreigners find hospital wards crowded by western standards but they are amazed at the high ratio of doctors and nurses to patients. A British doctor tells of an adult polyclinic with 45 doctors and a population of 10,000 (one for every 222 people compared with one per 630 in the United States as a whole). At a 1,300-bed children's polyclinic in Tbilisi there are 250 doctors and 600 nurses.

The large rosters may, in part, be related to short working hours. Some physicians do a four-hour shift, then work four hours at another clinic. The pay for ordinary practitioners is low, comparable to that of a moderately skilled worker.

An active area of Soviet medical research is in regeneration. When a claw is torn from a crab it can grow a new one. What prevents a higher animal from doing the same?

One of those working in this field is Dr. Aleksandr N. Studitsky. He has been experimenting with the use of minced muscle to replace tissue lost in accidents.

Muscle tissue does not regenerate to any extent. If an alligator bites a piece from someone's thigh, the lost muscle is replaced by scar tissue and other nonfunctional material. In his experiments Studitsky takes the thigh muscle of a rat, chops it fine, and puts it back in the rat's leg, coupling it with the nerves and blood vessels of the leg.

"Within three weeks," he said in a recent interview, "there is a normal muscle with its net of capillaries, nerve endings, and functional activity."

Confirmed In U.S.

Dr. Bruce Carlson, at the University of Michigan medical school, has verified some of Studitsky's findings with minced muscle and has himself been exploring the mechanisms of regeneration.

He points out that most of Studitsky's work has been with small volumes of muscle. If his mincing technique (which seems to work better than an intact transplant) is to replace large chunks of muscle, a way must be found to restore the main blood vessels needed to supply such tissue.

To compare Soviet medicine and medical research with those of an affluent society like the U.S. is difficult. Even when the assessments of specialists who have visited a dozen hospitals are available, one must remember that they have seen only a small sample of the whole, and probably the best sample at that.

The best of Soviet surgeons are virtuosos on a par with some of the best in the west. But on the average Soviet medicine is probably well below American standards. It also seems likely that it is providing better medical care to the lowest strata of its society than is the case in a number of countries in the west.

Patrol Wins Safety Award

The Nebraska State Patrol Thursday was awarded first place in the state police division of a national safety contest conducted by the National Safety Council.

Patrol Chief Col. James E. Kruger reported in Lincoln Thursday that the State Patrol won first in ceremonies held in conjunction with the 55th National Safety Congress and Exposition in Chicago.

Col. Kruger said the award is the ninth first place that the Nebraska State Patrol has won in the 14 years of the contest.

This year's award is based on the patrol's safety performance from July 1966 through June of 1967. During this period, the patrol had 1.74 accidents per one million miles of operation. The national average for state police fleets was nearly eight accidents for every one million miles of operation.

Railroad Officials Supporting Drive For Safer Crossings

Representatives of the five major railroads operating in Nebraska assured state officials Thursday they will cooperate to the hilt in any safety program to reduce grade crossing accidents.

"We are as interested in saving human lives as anyone else. We will do whatever we can to help achieve this end," said R. W. Steenblock of Fremont, roadmaster for the Chicago and North Western.

Similar statements were made by spokesmen for the Union Pacific, Rock Island, Burlington and Missouri Pacific railroads at a meeting with State Railway Commissioners James F. Munnelly, Robert R. Marland and Joseph Brown.

The 1½-hour session in the commission hearing room here stemmed from the Oct. 2 bus-train accident near Waterloo which resulted in the death of four children.

Munnelly said the commission has undertaken a program to inspect each of the 10,000 rural railroad grade crossings in Nebraska over the next few weeks, checking such things as sign placement, terrain, visual obstructions and other safety factors.

Problem areas will be brought to the attention of the railroads for correction, he said.

'Any Solution'

"It appears that any solution to the rail crossing accidents problem would have to include the element of an increased awareness of safety regulations relative to grade crossings on the part of law enforcement officers and the traveling public," said Munnelly.

"But until we are satisfied that present warning devices are adequate and all crossings are checked for hazardous conditions, it is impossible to enforce the present laws."

Munnelly said Nebraska railroads are "obviously concerned" about eliminating grade crossing accidents.

"This commission would like to insure the railroads that there is no hostility in this safety program. Full cooperation between them and the regulatory bodies is very important," he said.

Railroad representatives at the meeting included A. J. Strobel of Lincoln, Burlington; B. J. McDermott of Norfolk, Chicago and North Western; A. J. Reeves of Atkinson, Kan., Missouri Pacific; H. W. Deakin of Council Bluffs, Iowa, Rock Island; and Paul Martin of Omaha, Union Pacific.

Neff Raps Insurance Probe Report

State Insurance Director Ben Neff Thursday called a congressional investigator's report on auto insurance penalty practices "false and misleading."

He referred to a study by Kenneth R. Harkins, chief counsel of a house judiciary subcommittee. Harkins concluded some insurance companies penalize policyholders for accidents regardless of who was to blame.

Neff said Harkins' analysis was based on outdated statistics, some of which went back to before 1958. He also said the report failed to take into account normal insurance cost increases and so-called surcharge provisions which stipulate rates will rise according to the number of accidents a policyholder is involved in.

"Most of this information was false and the report itself was terribly, terribly misleading," the Nebraska insurance director said.

Neff said the report appeared to be a move on the part of "special interests" to achieve federal control of state insurance regulations.

Nebraska and other states, he noted, have long resisted legislation aimed in this direction.

Job Corps Fire Protection Contract Accord Reached

Lincoln and Northern Systems Co. have reached agreement on a new fire protection contract for the Lincoln Job Corps campus.

City and Northern officials have carried on negotiations for a new contract since last June when the previous annual contract ran out.

The city provided fire protection to the Job Corps campus during that period.

New Contract

The new contract calls for the payment of $100,000 by Northern, the same as the previous contract, for fire protection from July 1, 1967 to June 30, 1968.

Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf said that Northern Systems had urged a reduction in payment to $65,000.

The mayor said Northern will make a lump sum payment for fire protection for July, August and September and equal monthly payments of $8,333.33 thereafter.

In return, the city will furnish fire protection from its station near the flight line apron at the Municipal Airport. Service to be provided will include up to four rigs and 22 men.

Northern Systems, the Job Corps contractor, will permit monthly fire inspection of the area.

Affluence Good

Bombay (AP) — Affluence is all right, but superaffluence is no environment for young Indian scientists, says H. N. Sethna, director of the Bhaba Atomic Research Center. He told a research group young Indians should get their training in countries like Denmark because, "though they are affluent, they are not superaffluent as is the United States."

Legislative Committee Appoints Study Groups

A legislative committee Thursday appointed study groups to recommend changes in state laws for possible action at the next legislative session.

Scottsbluff Sen. Terry Carpenter, chairman of the Legislative Council's Committee on Liaison with the Department of Economic Development, said the aim of the committee was the eventual codification of Nebraska laws. He said the only field his committee would not consider were public power and roads because they were assigned to other legislative committees.

Study groups were appointed in the fields of city and county government, real estate, public welfare and election laws.

Carpenter said each group should bring in recommendations for reforming present laws or recommend new legislation.

"The thing I find in the legislative body is that we don't know what your problems are. Bring them all to us," Carpenter told the study groups.

Groups involved are the Real Estate Commission, League of Municipalities, the secretary of state's office, and the State Department of Public Welfare. Carpenter said more will be added.

The proposed recodification of the state's law was originally to be funded by federal funds channeled through the State Department of Economic Development. Department Director James W. Monroe told the committee no federal funds are presently available.

The Union Pacific Railroad stretches from the Missouri River to the West Coast.

Disobedience Hit By Episcopalian

Philadelphia (AP)—Staff members of the Diocese of Pennsylvania were warned Thursday to stop advocating civil disobedience or face possible dismissal.

Episcopal Bishop Robert L. DeWitt, head of the five-county Philadelphia area diocese, made the announcement after several days of controversy over statements by some Episcopal clergymen.

Last Private Power Firm Quitting

Nebraskans often speak of their state as the only "all public power" state in the nation.

Technically, the description has not been totally correct — but it soon will be, apparently.

The Nebraska Power Review Board reported Thursday that the last privately-owned electrical power company in the state seeks to go out of business.

Plainview Hi-View Highline Co., serving about 25 rural customers north of Plainview, has requested the board approve transfer of its electrical service area to the North Central Public Power District. The application said North Central will purchase the company's equipment and serve its customers.

Two months ago North Central purchased Eden Valley Light Co., the only other remaining private power company in the state. Eden Valley served about 50 rural customers near Plainview.

Some western Nebraskans still are served by private electric firms, but the firms are based in adjoining Wyoming.

As of July 1, 1966, there were 33,121 post offices in the United States and Possessions.

Tiemann Decided Air Department's General Fund Appropriation Should Go For New Plane

By VIRGIL FALLOON
Star Staff Writer

Gov. Norbert T. Tiemann made the decision to use the Department of Aeronautics' full $155,500 general fund appropriation in purchasing the governor's new $215,824 executive airplane, State Aeronautics Director Howard Vest said Thursday.

"It was an executive decision made by the governor," Vest told The Star in acknowledging the financing of the new twin-engine Grand Commander deviates from the department's request last April to the Legislature's Budget Committee.

"It is a perfectly justifiable decision in terms of air safety and other additional flying requirements," he added.

Confirmed

Vest confirmed that the department had proposed only $103,500 be used in the "purchase" of a new executive plane from the requested $155,500 appropriation with the remaining $52,500 earmarked for "fixed operational costs."

Vest's requesting letter of April 28 to the budget committee outlined a "firm" purchase price of $179,965 for a new Grand Commander less a $29,965 discount and $46,500 for the state's five-year-old Aero Commander, making a net general fund requirement of $103,500.

His letter additionally requested $52,500 for fixed operational costs, including aircraft depreciation, periodic maintenance and inspections, hangar and insurance costs but excluding pilot, fuel and minor repair costs.

'Pressurized'

Vest said the Aero Commander being purchased for $215,824 has a "pressurized cabin," accounting for $53,030 in price differential from the model proposed in his April 28 letter.

The "pressurized" Aero Commander can "fly above the weather and seek favorable winds aloft that will cut fuel costs and flying time," he said.

These additional safety and flying factors justify the executive decision to use the total appropriation he explained.

Vest said the operational costs would be picked up by the department's appropriated cash funds and reimbursing revenue for the plane's use.

The governor's use of the executive plane is borne by the aeronautics budget, but other using departments and agencies will be billed $100 per flying hour.

Delivery of the new $215,824 plane, which Vest said is $52,906 off of manufacturer's list price, is expected to be made next week by Rockwell Standard Corporation's Aero Commander Division at Bethany, Okla.

Payment

Vest said payment for the plane will be $155,500 from the general fund, $46,500 from the sale of the old plane (Aero Commander was successful bidder), and $13,824 from departmental cash funds.

Sen. Richard Marvel, chairman of the Legislature's 1967 Budget Committee, declined to comment on whether the department is deviating from legislative intent in the $155,500 general fund purchase.

However, he said the interim budget study committee "is looking for deviations from 1967-69 program appropriations by departments and agencies."

"We want to find where they are and why," he added.

Added Controls

Marvel said the budget study committee hopes to make recommendations for additional appropriation controls, where needed, to the 1969 Legislature.

A Budget Committee "letter of intent" of Aug. 29 to the aeronautics department stated in part, "Pursuant to your letter of April 28, which you enclosed a proposal for aircraft purchase, a general fund appropriation was made in the amount of $155,500.

However, the Department of Justice has advised the Department of Administrative Services that the budget committee's letters of intent are not legally binding upon department and agencies.

It is time to carve a jack-o-lantern again. It is a skill passed on to me by my grandfather. He lived down in Illinois. Pumpkin country.

It was Indian country in early days. When they plowed, they often turned up flint arrowheads. A collection of them in the whatnot, a curved glass cupboard that stood in the corner of the parlor.

Our great-great-great-grandfather was captured by these Indians October 23, 1762. He was eight years old. He was a captive for four years. White traders bought him back for a ransom of blankets.

When our jack-o-lantern was carved, glowing with candlelight, he was a scary thing. Maybe like an Indian looking in from the cold October night.

A jack-o-lantern is man's work. Ladies are asked to leave the kitchen — "or you might get cut, see?"

With ladies safely out of the way, we begin. Set the pumpkin on the table.

We slice the top off and remove the seeds. The seeds are dried. Later we put them in butter and roast them. Salt them and they are delicious.

If you have a child who grinds his teeth, feed him salted pumpkin seeds. It is a sure cure.

The Indians took the captured boy and earmarked him. "They slit the rims of his ears. How would you like that?" said my grandfather slitting the pumpkin's golden ears. "I wouldn't," I said.

We cut the pumpkin with a pocket knife which we keep suitably dull so it will not cut you—ouch!

No, it is not deep, son. Just get me something to stick on it.

That is exactly what I mean. Do not cut toward you. Cut away from yourself.

How is that? Did he talk Indian? I should say he did. How else would he talk to the Indians?

What kind of Indians? I expect they were Shawnees. Maybe Cornstalk's warriors. The meanest kind. Looked just about like this jack-o-lantern. Raggedy teeth and all.

We now cut triangles for the nose and eyes. A big wide slit for a mouth. I prefer grinning pumpkins. The kind of horrid grin an Indian would make just before he slit your ears.

We leave in a few jagged pieces of pumpkin for teeth.

Out of the top (which fits in place like a cap with a tassel top), we cut a corner hole for the smoke of the candle to come out. A pumkin smells very pumpkiny when the candle is first lit.

Did he cry when they slit his ears? I imagine he did not. Certainly it hurt. But he probably did not cry.

Now—inside the pumpkin we put a big, fat red candle. Light it. Boy, that IS a scary jack-o-lantern!

The plastic ones they sell in the stores you can have.

A jack-o-lantern should be all pumpkin. Full of seeds. Smelling like a pumpkin. Home-made, so you cannot tell at the beginning whether he will come out scary or just silly looking.

This one is scary. It would even scare a wild Indian.

Grandfather said they took the boy captive out of "pure Indian meanness."

We imagine this jack-o-lantern will scare the daylights out of the neighbors. It goes in the window in the evening.

The pumpkins are extra good this year. Big, yellow, smooth pumpkins. Pumpkin pie goes well around this time of year. Also apples and nuts. The new nut crop is in.

Did the boy dress like an Indian?

Well, I think he probably did, son. Feathers in his hair. Breech clout. Bow and arrows. He could probably do the war whoop, too.

That is the way it was told to me. And that is the way I'm telling it to you.

Sale Of Notifier Corp. To Emhart Announced

Oliver Joy
Notifier Founder

Sale of the assets of Notifier Corporation of Lincoln to Emhart Corporation for Emhart stock was announced Thursday. The agreement has been approved by the boards of directors of both companies, the announcement said.

Notifier, which was formed 18 years ago, employs 140 people in its Lincoln plant. Sales in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1967, were about two million dollars.

The business will operate as a wholly-owned subsidiary of Emhart, and Notifier's present personnel and distribution systems will be retained, the chairman of Emhart, David Muirhead, said.

Notifier is a supplier of fire detection and industrial security systens. Emhart manufacturers builders' hardware, sporting firearms, machinery for making glass containers, packaging machinery, refrigerated food display cases, metal fasteners and other products.

For the year ended Dec. 31, 1966, Emhart had sales of $209,330,000 and net income of $13,905,000, or $3.17 per share.

Muirhead said the Notifier acquisition represents "a natural extension of Emhart's present operations" which include development work in locking devices and premise security.

Oliver T. Joy, president and founder of Notifier, announced his plans to retire, but he will stay with the new Emhart subsidiary on an interim basis and becomes a director of the Emhart Corporation.

The Notifier plant and property belong personally to Joy and his wife, who have leased them to Emhart for 20 years. The 34,000 square foot plant is located on a six-acre site at 3700 North 56th.

Notifier fire alarm and monitoring and security systems have been installed in several large General Motors plants, the Smithsonian Institution, Oklahoma State University, the Space Technology Laboratory and the Independence Hall complex in Philadelphia.

Emhart has other subsidiaries and divisions in 12 other states and Puerto Rico and in five other nations.

Big, Depersonalized School Is 'Villain'

By LUCILLE HOWARD
Star Staff Writer

Author, teacher and lecturer Bel Kaufman Thursday cast the "large, depersonalized school systems of our nation" as the "villain" in education.

Observing that one of every 10 children needs psychiatric care and that education may be partly to blame, the writer of the best-selling novel "Up the Down Staircase" declared that "it is certainly not the fault" of teachers, administrators, parents or the students.

" 'Here I am. Pay attention. Care about me.' That is what teachers in big city schools find the hardest to do for their students.

"And that is the basis of education," she emphasized.

Miss Kaufman, addressing nearly 5,000 educators attending the Nebraska State Education Association District I convention here Thursday and Friday, said "I am appalled at the dullness and waste going on in our schools.

"Something should be going on in every classroom every minute, but too often there is nothing."

Jabs at Directives

Delighting her Nebraska peers with jabs at administrative directives and educational lingo taken from her book about teaching English a New York City public school, Miss Kaufman also read some of the memos passed on to her since.

"Just what is a slow nonreader," she demanded.

"Some of them are so bad I have to tone them down for credibility," she contended.

Now an assistant professor at the Borough of Manhattan Community College, the attractive speaker claimed to have "run the gamut of the tough and so-called best schools of New York City. I have even been a per diem sub (substitute teacher), "the lowest of the low."

She admitted to having taught at least 22 years.

Miss Kaufman, who came to this country from Moscow, Russia, when she was 14, talked extensively about her book and the process of making it into a movie.

One of the discarded title suggestions, she revealed, was "Don't Shoot Until you see the Pupils."

Upside Down

When the book was translated into Russian, the title came out "Upside Down on the Staircase."

"Each of you secretly knows you should have written just such a book, or could have written it."

"Beneath the humor I am dead serious about what I am saying in the story," the NSEA members were told. The material is "fictional truth, which is frequently more real than reality itself."

According to the author-teacher, children and poets are the only true communicators we have left.

Reading comments and suggestions from students on the "premium of the mighty mark," integration and required reading, Miss Kaufman declared that the youths actually were saying they had been "shortchanged" and "bored" in school.

Empty-Handed

To so many, she said, school is irrelevant and meaningless. The children come so empty-handed and too often they also leave empty-handed.

One boy said "I thought school was supposed to help me in real life but it didn't."

That is the problem, Miss Kaufman complained, "nothing in school is cohesive or has anything to do with life as the students are living it."

Presenting some ideas on enhancing the creative potential, Mrs. Margaret S. Woods of Seattle Pacific College, told the convention delegates that "we are so busy shoveling in the subject matter, we fail to see what creativeness can come from a child."

Mrs. Woods urged that schools take steps to enhance the creative potential of teachers as well as the children.

Her method, she explained, is to "accept the child as he is and then subtly refine him. There are no children who have been deprived of a culture. There are just some cultures we refuse to accept.

Luncheon Is Courtesy For Bride-Elect

Yesterday's snow storm in no way handicapped the fun at the party for which Miss Susan Riggle was hostess at Hotel Cornhusker. The affair was a luncheon for a Sunday bride-elect, Miss Sherry Marsh.

The guest list of 12 included members of the family and also members of the bridal party.

Standing at the back is Mrs. Frank Marsh.

The wedding of Miss Marsh and Philip Arthur Tupper of North Wilmington, Del., will take place on Sunday, Oct. 29.

town talk

Variety is the spice of life, 'tis said, and variety is what we've had weather wise—a little rain, a little hail, and a little snow. Maybe today we'll have a little sun.

But there also is variety in the news this morning—a little about a bride-elect, a little about some guests (potential) a little about travelers, and a few words about homecomers.

Our bride-elect is Miss Lynn Shriner whose marriage to Steven Kosman will be solemnized on Saturday, Dec. 16.

Miss Shriner's party-go-round begins next Wednesday, Nov. 1, when Mrs. Harry Seward, Jr., and Mrs. Chauncey Barney will be coffee hostesses at the home of Mrs. Barney. The bride-elect will be presented with a kitchen shower.

The guests we mentioned a bit earlier, will be Mr. and Mrs. Elton Fee who will be arriving from Ojai, Calif., on Nov. 9. Mr. and Mrs. Fee will be the house guests of Mrs. George Haecker but, of course, will spend considerable time with Mr. Fee's mother, Mrs. O. J. Fee.

Speaking of Mrs. Haecker—We learned that she and Mrs. A. L. Haecker spent last weekend in Lawrence, Kan., where they visited Mrs. George Haecker's son and daughter-in-law. Mr. and Mrs. Foster (Woody) Haecker. Actually the main attraction was four month-old Anne Elizabeth Haecker who had not been personally introduced to either her grandmother or her great-grandmother, and three year-old Mark.

As a matter of fact there were two great-grandmothers on hand in Lawrence last weekend—and one great-grandfather. Mr. and Mrs. J. Earle Foster, accompanied by Mr. Foster's sister, Mrs. R. D. Woodruff, were in Lawrence. Mrs. George Haecker and Mrs. A. L. Haecker returned home on Monday, but on Monday Mr. Foster and Mrs. Woodruff went to Kansas City on business and, with Mrs. Foster, returned home on Tuesday.

The travelers we had in mind are Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Robinson who left on Thursday for Dallas, Tex., where they will spend a week.

suburbia

Fiene Heights
Skyline Terrace
Park Valley Heights

This probably will be another busy weekend in suburbia, especially with the youngsters home for a four-day stretch due to the State Teachers' Convention. We imagine that the children (and mothers!) are hoping for some cooperation from the weather-man, so that they will be able to engage in a little outdoor activity—snow balling, for instance—before the winter which has been threatening, really does set in!

But no matter how many goings-on there are during the weekend we doubt that they could compare with the last one. A week ago it seemed that if suburban residents weren't coming or going, they were taking care of guests who were doing one or the other (or both, in some cases!)

For instance, in the Fiene Heights home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Witt, time was passed celebrating two birthdays, in addition to attending the football game. Both Mrs. Witt and her son, George, observed birthdays, and arriving Saturday for the occasion were Mr. and Mrs. Witt's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Dunham and their son, David, of Ralston. We hear that Mrs. Witt was delegated as official babysitter for young David while the rest of the family attended the game—an occupation that she apparently didn't mind a bit.

News of another birthday celebration comes to us from Skyline Terrace where Miss Susanne Avey is celebrating her fourth anniversary today. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Avey, Susanne will be hostess to eight friends at her first party to be held at her home, 7906 Broadview Dr.

Her guests will be James Bopp, Barbara Spaur, Michael Carney, Beth Ann Koenecke, Tammy Langloss, Jill Cole and Kimberly Cole, and, of course, her brother, Jeff Avey.

The recent weekend was a very busy one for South Brook Summit residents, Mr. and Mrs. Glen Martin, who were guests in Wolbach before attending a wedding in Wood River on Sunday. During their visit in Wolbach the Martins were the houseguests of Mr. Martin's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Martin, and an aunt, Mrs. Leatha Murphy. Accompanying their parents were Gary, Pamela and Jacqueline.

New names to mention this morning are newcomers to the Northeast Heights neighborhood. Mr. and Mrs. Donald J. Slocum and their daughters are settling down at a 700 N. 56th address after arriving in Lincoln two weeks ago. Former residents of Denver, Colo., Mr. and Mrs. Slocum are natives of Oklahoma—as their accents can easily tell you.

Included in this family which likes the outdoor life are Linda, 14, Cathy, 12, Sehlley, 11, and Pam, 8.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald H. Landers are quite familiar with the Lincoln environs. Longtime residents of Davey though employed in the city, Mr. and Mrs. Landers decided to move into Lincoln at a 925 N. 65th St. home.

Program Speakers

The topic, "Women of Influence," was developed in the program of the Lincoln Toastmistress Club, Monday evening, with Miss Edith Lumsden serving as toastmistress.

Program speakers were Miss Edna Jacob, "Profiles of First Ladies"; Mrs. W. E. Woodworth, "A Crown of Thorns"; Mrs. Wallace C. Peterson, "From Eve to Lady Bird"; and Miss Cora Mae Briggs, "One Among The Many".

Impromptu talks were directed by Miss Leora Horning, and a report on the recent Toastmistress Council meeting in Shenandoah, Iowa, was given by Mrs. Frank B. O'Connell.

Marriage

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Minnie Sterkel to Jess Damian at a service which took place on Sunday, Oct. 15.

Upon their return from a wedding trip to southern states, Mr. and Mrs. Damian will make their home at 3540 So. 56th.

BRIDGE

test your dummy play

B. Jay Becker

TEST YOUR PLAY

1. You are declarer with the West hand at Four Hearts, North having opened the bidding as dealer with a club, which your partner doubled. North leads the queen of spades. How would you play the hand? (Assume that the trumps are divided 2-2 or 3-1.)

	♠ 8 5 2 ♥ A K J 10 6 ♦ Q 7 4 ♣ K 9
♠ A K 7 ♥ Q 9 5 3 ♦ A J 3 ♣ 6 4 2	N W E S

2. You are declarer with the West hand at Six Clubs. North leads the king of diamonds and continues with the ace. You ruff and play the ace of clubs, North showing out. How would you now play the hand?

	♠ K Q ♥ A 9 7 4 3 ♦ 8 ♣ A K Q 9 5
♠ A J 7 4 3 ♥ K 6 ♦ J 5 ♣ 10 7 6 2	N W E S

1. The possible losers are a spade, a diamond and two clubs, but one of these losers can almost surely be eliminated by taking advantage of the knowledge gained from North's opening bid. North appears to be marked with the Q-J of spades, king of diamonds, and A-Q or A-J of clubs (possibly the A-Q-J), and all that West has to do at the start is visualize a later endplay position against him.

The first step in this direction is to duck the queen of spades. The purpose of this play is to make sure that South does not later take the lead with the ten of spades (if he has it) for the killing return of a club through the king.

After this, the play is fairly automatic. Assume that North continues with a spade. Declarer wins in dummy, plays a heart to the ace, leads a low diamond to the jack, draws the outstanding trumps, cashes the ace of spades, and then plays the ace and another diamond.

North wins with the king but must now lead a club or yield a ruff and discard. Either way, declarer makes four hearts.

2. It would be dangerous to try to ruff your hearts in dummy because South might be short in hearts and overruff. The best method of play is to cash the K-Q of spades and enter dummy with the king of hearts. Now run dummy's spades. If South ruffs at any point, overruff, draw trumps, and you have the rest of the tricks. If South refuses to ruff, you take a trump finesse to make the contract.

Of course, South may ruff the king or queen of spades when you lead them, in which case you go down, but that is much less of a risk to run than attempting to trump hearts in dummy.

ABBY

not your problem

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My husband's older sister recently lost her husband after a lingering illness. He wasn't buried two weeks when she blew into town asking if we knew any eligible men for her to forget her sorrow with. She says she isn't interested in any "old" men "over 60." (She claims to be 70, but my husband says she is 74!) She tells everyone she has just had a thoro checkup at the Mayo clinic and they told her she was like a girl of 25.

As soon as she meets a person she tells him about her holdings, property and cash on hand.

We don't know what's come over her. She has dyed her lovely gray hair a hideous orange, and she wears mini-skirts and loud colors. How can we explain her disgraceful appearance and conduct to our friends? She is the talk of this town.

EMBARRASSED

DEAR EMBARRASSED: You could explain that you think her grief has gone to her head. (Maybe it has.) In any case, you are not responsible for your sister-in-law's behavior.

DEAR ABBY: Our problem goes back to 1943 when my husband was in World War II. We were very much in love—and still are. He was in the air corps and I worked on the base. We planned to marry as soon as the war was over. He was sent overseas and soon after I learned that I was pregnant. He got back when I was in my ninth month and we didn't feel like getting married with me in my obvious condition so we told everyone (including our families) that we had been married secretly all along.

Well, it has been nearly 24 years and we still aren't married. We had other children (our eldest is now married) and no one suspects that we have never gone thru a marriage ceremony. We kept wanting to get married, but were afraid our application for a license would be published and everyone would know we had never been married.

We are a devoted couple, Abby, and we "feel" as married as legally married couples, but we want our children to be legitimate, and we want to get this off our consciences. Is there any way we can get married now without embarrassing our families and children? If you can help us we would be eternally grateful. No names, please.

FROM LODI, CALIFORNIA

DEAR FROM: Ask your lawyer to tell you about Section 79 of the California Civil Code which he may agree could answer your problem.

How has the world been treating you? Unload your problems on Dear Abby, Box 90069. For a personal, unpublished reply, inclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Playing Winning Teams

One of the things detractors from Nebraska football have harped on in recent years is that Husker foes have had poor records, but such is not the case this season.

Nebraska's first five opponents own a composite record of 16 wins and 10 losses while the 10 foes on the NU schedule this season have a 26-22-1 mark.

A look at NU successes over Washington and Minnesota make the Huskers look good in view of what those two teams have done in their other games.

Washington, for instance, has lost only to the Huskers and to No. 1 ranked Southern Cal with the Trojans' winning margin of 23-6 being only seven points better than the Huskers at 17-7.

Minnesota, meanwhile, has won three straight games after losing to the Huskers and could land the Big 10 Rose Bowl berth with key tests yet to come against Purdue on Nov. 11 and Indiana on Nov. 18.

We can't quite go along with the thinking of a fellow in our composing room, who figured after seeing the polls this week that if Colorado is No. 3, Nebraska ought to be No. 2, but the NU record is impressive despite being only 3-2.

That's about what our picking percentage has been, hitting on 36 last week with 17 wrong and one tie for .676 making the season mark 190-94-7 for .665.

This week:

The Big Eight

NEBRASKA 20, Texas Christian 13 . . . Figuring the Horned Frogs will jell this week, but the Huskers have gone too long without a win.

ARKANSAS 24, Kansas State 10 . . . Making the Big Eight record against the Southwest 1-1 this week.

KANSAS 20, Iowa State 7 . . . The Jayhawks need only this one and one next week against Kansas State to go into the Colorado game unbeaten in the league. Would you believe that?

COLORADO 28, Oklahoma State 10 . . . The Cowboys will be trying to come back, but the Huskers found the Buffs are a tough team to bounce back against.

OKLAHOMA 21, Missouri 7 . . . We'll find out this week how good the Oklahoma offense really is.

The Top Ten

SOUTHERN CAL 35, Oregon 7 . . . Nobody can stop O. J. Simpson, whose initials Notre Dame publicist Roger Valdiserri claims should stand for Oh, Jesus as in "Oh, Jesus, there he goes again."

NORTH CAROLINA STATE 24, Duke 10 . . . We find it hard to get very excited about this one.

GEORGIA 28, Kentucky 7 . . . The Wildcats are having a horrible year.

PURDUE 47, Iowa 0 . . . If you think the Wildcats are having a horrible year, how about Iowa?

WYOMING 31, Arizona State 14 . . . The Cowboys cruise toward somebody's bowl.

HOUSTON 20, Mississippi 14 . . . If there's going to be an upset in the top ten, this could be it.

Frog Head-Hunter Now Thinker

Fort Worth — "You're a head-hunter as a middle linebacker . . . a thinker as a defensive end," is the contrast offered by TCU sophomore Pat Walker of the two positions.

Walker earned all-district honors as a middle linebacker at Port Neches-Groves and sholarship offers from all Southwest Conference schools as well as the Naval Academy because of his high academic ranking.

Now Pat is TCU's first string defensive left end, a position promotion he won after his opening varsity game against Iowa.

Playing defensive end was a new experience for Pat when spring drills began under the Frogs' new head coach, Fred Taylor.

"I would have played anywhere," smiled Walker. "It had been so long since I was in a game."

A starting linebacker in TCU's first two freshman games last year, Walker threw a block on the opening kickoff against Baylor's Cubs and sustained rib fractures that sidelined him for the remainder of the season.

"I made the mistake of turning a little too much when I threw the block and got a knee in my ribs," he explains.

Ironically, Pat's roommate, starting quarterback Dan Carter of Liberty, suffered the same injury in spring training.

"I had a tendency to over run a play in spring drills," remembers Pat. "I had to restrain myself from committing myself too early on the option."

"Being a middle linebacker . . . a head-hunter, was Pat's major problem in his switchover," says TCU linebacker coach Harvey Reeves. "Pat was too aggressive wanting to hit people."

"He's coming along now. He played the option perfectly in the Texas A&M game, stringing along the quarterback, then cracking him when he didn't pitch.

"We have high hopes for Pat now."

At the season's start, Pat confesses he had no visions of playing first string with a letterman ahead of him. Things changed quickly for Pat after the Iowa game.

Walker feels he's moving much quicker on defense than in spring training due to the loss of 10 pounds during the summer. He's down to 195.

He credits his solid football foundation to his two years under Bum Phillips, now with the San Diego Chargers, and then his senior season with Ken Watson.

"Coach Phillips spent all his spare time watching films. He was student of the game. Things picked up at Port Neches when he came on the scene."

In Pat's senior year, his team didn't lose a game but two ties, with Nederland and Port Arthur, cost his school a playoff berth.

TCU plays Nebraska here Saturday afternoon and Pat's one hope is that there's more business his way than against Texas A&M.

"The Aggies didn't run to my side very often," an indication that yardage doesn't come easy Pat's way.

NU Chased Indoors

Thursday's cold, rain, snowy weather chased Nebraska's football team indoors for its final workout at home in preparing the Saturday's Texas Christian game at Fort Worth.

"I wanted to go outside," head coach Bob Deavney quipped, "But we handled it in a democratic manner and took a vote. I think the vote was about 85 to 1."

The Huskers reviewed plays to be used against the Horned Frogs. Nebraska will fly to Fort Worth today and work out this afternoon at Amon Carter Stadium.

Devaney named a 52-man traveling squad for the trip, including five additional players, who did not make the last road trip to Kansas.

The rest of the squad:

Seven-Under-Par 64 Takes 2nd-Round Lead

. . . NICKLAUS IN CONTENTION

INJURED FROG . . . Steve Jamail, TCU end, is a doubtful starter against the Huskers because of a bruised shoulder injured in the Texas A&M game.

Las Vegas, Nev. (AP)—Young Steve Spray fired a seven-under-par 64 Thursday, the best in his brief career as a professional, and led the way at the midway mark with a 36-hole score of 133 in the $100,000 Sahara Invitational Golf ?? Sahara Invitational Gof Tournament.

Spray, 26, from Cedar Rapids, Iowa, toured the 7,069-yard, par 36-35-71 Paradise Valley Country Club course with a brilliant 34-30, two strokes shy of the course record.

Defending champion Jack Nicklaus remained in strong contention with a 69 for 137 and gallery favorite Arnold Palmer, who aimed at a 68 in order to beat the cut and made it and beat the cut by one stroke with a score of 144.

Playing again in ideal weather, the pros for the second day made a shambles of par, 33 shooting 141 or better for the two rounds.

Two strokes back of Spray were Bob Goalby with a 67 and Terry Dill with a 68 for their 135's.

Huff's Iron-Man Stint To End

By Associated Press

Linebacker Sam Huff of the Washington Redskins was told by his doctor Thursday that he definitely will be unable to play against the Baltimore Colts Sunday, thus ending the second longest consecutive playing streak in the National Football League.

Huff, who suffered an ankle injury last Sunday in collision with a teammate, had played in 150 consecutive games in the NFL as well as six league title games and one conference play-off.

"Huff definitely won't be able to play Sunday," a doctor in Washington reported.

The 6-foot-1, 230-pound former New York Giant earlier had insisted he would play but later said, "It's more serious than I thought. Realistically, I'd have to say no about playing."

Huff was injured last Sunday when he collided with the 6-4, 275-pound Spain Musgrove, defensive tackle of the Redskins while chasing quarterback Roman Gabriel of the Los Angeles Rams.

Musgrove managed to come out of the accident all in one piece.

Huff's injury tops the list of ailments in the NFL, which has a seven-game schedule Sunday. In the American League, where four games will be played, the Buffalo Bills probably will have to go without split end Art Powell, who has hyper-tension in his right knee.

Coach Joe Collier has announced he will use either Ed Rtukowski, an all-purpose performer, or rookie John Pitts against the Houston Oilers.

Huff's playing streak dates back to the first game of the 1956 season when he joined the New York Giants. He played every game for the Giants until he was traded to the Redskins in the spring of 1964. Now he has gone 48 straight games with the Washington club.

It's the second longest streak among active players in the NFL. The workhorse of the league is Jim Ringo of the Philadelphia Eagles, who has played 174 straight games and is shooting for the record of 180, set last season by Dick Modzelewski over a span with the Giants and Browns. Cleveland's Paul Wiggin has played in 138 straight.

Here's the hospital report for the weekend pro games:

New Concern In TCU Camp

Fort Worth, Tex. (AP) — End Steve Jamail's bruised shoulder, injured in the Texas A&M game Saturday, caused new concern Thursday for Texas Christian coach Fred Taylor.

His Horned Frogs entertain Nebraska Saturday in an intersectional football contest.

Jamail worked freely Tuesday with his shoulder taped but the injury restricted his movement so much Wednesday that Taylor made adjustments in case the senior starter is unable to play.

Linebacker Steve Gunn and free safety Charlie Brightwell also are doubtful for the clash with the defending Big Eight champions.

Patterson-Quarry Bout To Be Fought Saturday

Los Angeles (AP) — Heavyweights Floyd Patterson and Jerry Quarry collide in a 12-round fight Saturday billed as one of an elimination series to fill the void left by the banishment of Cassius Clay from the throne for a military draft evasion conviction.

But neither the two-time former champion, Patterson, nor young Quarry contend that whoever survives the elimination bout can be truly called the heavyweight champion of the world until—and if—he meets Muhammud Ali.

The Patterson Quarry bout goes on at 3 p.m. PDT at the Olympic Auditorium and a national television audeince can sit in and watch it on ABC.

The 32-year-old Patterson and the 22-year-old Quarry are as ready as they can be to step into the ring for a rematch of their 10-round draw in Los Angeles June 9.

As for claiming the vacant title-

"Mentally," Patterson said recently, "I don't believe any of us in these eliminations will be fully satisfied until we meet Clay. What Clay does or thinks personally are matters for him to decide but I personally think the heavyweight championship should be decided in the ring. I certainly hope I can meet him again for the title."

Quarry had the same reflections on this topic. He, too, would like to meet Clay if and when.

Patterson had his shot at Clay in Las Vegas, Nev., Nov. 22, 1965, and was stopped in the 12th round. Clay knocked Floyd down but once, in the sixth round, but Patterson, complaining of a severe muscle spasm in his back, had to quit in the 12th.

Asked whether if he loses to Quarry, will he hang up the gloves, Patterson said, "I never train for a fight with the thought of losing, but if I lose, well, I would have to consider the manner in which I lost if I would retire. I hope to keep on fighting but if I found something I liked better, I'd quit tomorrow—well, after Saturday. So far I haven't found anything."

Patterson's implication was if Quarry were to inflict heavy damage and knock him out, this might be his last fight. But he also strongly indicated he does not anticipate such a development.

Hockey Team To Play

The Nebraska girls field hockey team will face Northeast Iowa Sunday at Ames, Iowa.

Schollander Aids U.S. In Pre-Olympics

. . . OLYMPIC ACE CAPTURES GOLD MEDALS

Mexico City (AP)—Don Schollander, the Olympic-wise veteran of the United States swimming team, captured his second and third gold medals as the U.S. won four of the seven swim events Thursday night in the Pre-Olympics.

The Yale University student, who won four golds in the 1964 Olympics, finished in a hurry to win the 200-meter freestyle in a close battle with Leonid Ilievhov of Russia. He then anchored the winning 400-meter freestyle relay team.

Schollander of Saratoga, Calif., beat two Russians in the 100-meter freestyle Wednesday night.

Jane Barkman of Wayne, Pa., won the women's 100-meet freestyle and Carl Robie of Philadelphia captured the men's 100-meter butterfly for the other U.S. victories.

East Germany took two golds as Frank Wiegand splashed home in the 200-meter individual medley and Sabine Steinback took the women's 200-meter backstroke.

Ada Kok of Holland, world record holder in the women's 200-meter butterfly, easily won that event, although far off her August record of 2:21.0.

In other finals, Pierre D'Oriola of France won the equestrian, Russia grabbed the water polo tournament and East Europeans battled for the gold in men's epee fencing.

Schollander's victory was the most exciting race of the day that again saw no records threatened. He took it easy the first two laps, but poured it on after the final turn to pass Leonid Iliechov of Russia with 25 meters left.

Schollander finished in 1:59.0, an arm length ahead of the Russian, whose time was 1:59.2. The time, however, was three seconds slower than the world record Schollander set earlier this year.

The relay team of Schollander, Robie, Peter Williams of Pittsburgh and Andy Strenk of Fullerton, Calif., easily beat two Mexican teams, the only others entered, in 3:49.1.

Miss Barkman was clocked in 1:01.0, two seconds ahead of Linda Gustavson of Santa Clara, Calif., and about two seconds off the world record.

Robie took his race in :58.9 as he outbattled two Russians, Sergio Konov and Alexandre Gordeev, to win by four-tenths of a second.

"I never knew those two Russians before, but I know them now," Robie said. "It was tougher than I expected.

Miss Kok finished in 2:24.8, far outdistancing Helga Lindner of East Germany and Patty Caretto of Whittier, Calif.

Williams finished a disappointing third to Wiegand, whose 2:20.5 time beat Hans Ljungberg of Sweden by an arm length. Williams was timed in 2:20.2.

Miss Steinback's time was 2:32.8, 1.1 second ahead of Kendis Moore of Phoenix, Ariz.

Six Cities Submit Bids

Lincoln's bid for the 1968 national AAU swimming and diving meet will compete with others from Indianapolis, Toledo, San Antonio, Albuquerque and Santa Clara, Calif., Lincoln Chamber of Commerce directors were told Wednesday.

But Wendell Groth, last year's AAU meet director here, was enthusiastic as he told the chamber he will go to New Orleans to submit Lincoln's invitation Nov. 29.

"We should know that night which city was successful," Groth reported.

The meet will be staged Aug. 1-4, no matter which city wins the sports event.

Groth said sponsors of other events in the same general period have been cooperative or had changed dates earlier before Lincoln's chance at the swim meet came up.

He reported the roller skating championships can be moved back to an Aug. 6-18 period instead of July 28-Aug. 7 and the Shrine Game is scheduled Aug. 24.

Hotels and the Nebraska Center also have the swim meet dates generally free and few conventions are slated during the four-day period, according to Groth.

He told the chamber the budget could be as low as $10,000 but promised to deliver a documented cost schedule to the chamber executive committee in November.

Beard Sets Record

Golfer Frank Beard set a PGA season record by playing the Hartford and Westchester, N.Y., tournaments without getting a bogey on 84 straight holes. He was 70 or under in Hartford's four rounds yet tied only for seventh.

Big 8 Grid Workouts

Kansas

Lawrence, Kan. (AP) — The Kansas Jayhawks worked for an hour inside the fieldhouse Thursday to escape the rain in getting ready for the Iowa State game.

Assistant coach Dick Toomey, who scouted Iowa State against Missouri last week, gave this assessment of the Cyclones:

"They'll be as strong physically as anybody we have played. Defense is where they've really got big people, like Willie Muldrew. They stand in there and try to handle you and they do a good job of it."

Toomey said I-State's tailback, Les Webster, is better than any back the Jayhawks have played against so far, while flanker John Busch is "as good as anybody in the league."

"We'll have to play our darnedest to beat them," Toomey concluded.

Iowa State

Stapleton said junior Al Staidl has been promoted to the starting job at the linebacker post. He said Graves will be sidelined indefinitely with a leg injury, but Thompson hopefully will recover from a knee sprain by next week.

The Cyclones were forced to move indoors for Thursday's practice session due to snow, and Stapleton said very little was accomplished during the workout.

Iowa State will leave Friday afternoon for Kansas City, where the team will spend the night before traveling to Lawrence.

Missouri

Coach Dan Devine said six regulars who have missed practice with injuries with start against the Sooners with the possible exception of tackle Curtis Jones. If Jones fails to start, Roger Boyd will replace him.

Oklahoma

Norman, Okla. (AP) — "We're in good physical condition, the best we've been in since the season started, "Oklahoma football Coach Chuck Fairbanks said Thursday as his Sooners prepared for Saturday's crucial tussle with Missouri.

"I think we'll be ready for the ball game Saturday," Fairbanks added. He said the Sooners worked on special situations, teamwork and their kicking game in Friday's drill, and Fairbanks called "a real good workout with "lots of enthusiasm.

Kansas State

Manhattan, Kan. (AP)—Coach Vince Gibson gave up his plan to have his Kansas State football squad drill under the lights at the Manhattan High School Thursday night.

Because of rain and cold, the Wildcats practiced indoors in sweat clothes.

The night workout was scheduled because the Wildcats will play Arkansas Saturday night at Little Rock.

Oklahoma State

Stillwater, Okla. (AP) — The Oklahoma State Cowboys reviewel "everything" in a 50-minute workout Thursday in preparation for Saturday's Big Eight football battle against Colorado at Boulder.

Two outstanding offensive Cowboy backs who have only recently returned to action after missing most of the season—Ron Johnson and Larry Gosney — were included in Coach Phil Cutchin's comment, "We're in good health."

Both were able to play against Kansas last week, but Cutchin noted they have now had a week of work to get back in time.

Coaches Clinic Set For Saturday Morning

Five of Nebraska's most successful high school basketball coaches and University of Nebraska assistant Bill Harrell will be the featured speakers at a clinic, beginning at 9 a.m. Saturday in Southeast's gym. All coaches are welcome.

The speakers and their subjects: Bill Kropp, Aurora, organization and administration; Harrell, NU, pressure defense; George Pfeifer, Boys Town, zone defense; Jack Wood, Bellevue, individual offensive play; Tom Brosnihan, Creighton Prep, meeting the fast break; Bob Mackie, Ralston, fast break offense.

NU Freshman To Meet MU

Nemesis Missouri provides the opposition as Nebraska's freshman football team makes its second start of the season at Columbia Friday.

The Cornhusker yearlings have lost two straight games to Missouri, the only losses in the six years Bob Devaney's staff has been in Lincoln. The NU frosh have won 13 games during that span, including a 24-0 triumph over Kansas State last week.

Coach Clete Fischer indicates that there will be few lineup changes this week.

Linebacker Dennis Gutzman, injured in the K-State fray, will be replaced by either Al Murphy or Ervin Haynes in the 2:30 p.m. contest.

Fischer also noted that Rich Coppa would likely get the call over ailing Kent Liddle at center.

He also observed that on offense, Dave Walline, Wally Winter and Ron Volberding were alternated this week.

Missouri is 1-1, having stopped Kansas State, but losing to Iowa State.

Clark Can't Make Field In Thursday Qualifying

. . . FOR AMERICAN 500 RACE

Rockingham, N. C. (AP) — Eight more drivers qualified Thursday for the American 500 stock car race, but international star Jimmy Clark was not among them.

The little Scotsman, making his first start in an American big bore sedan, got his factory-backed Ford Fairlane up to competitive speed but then ran into handling problems that will put him at least 16 cars back in the 44-car starting field.

The day's fastest time for Sunday's $78,000 grind over the one-mile, banked North Carolina Motor Speedway was posted by veteran Paul Goldsmith in a Plymouth. Goldsmith, who won the Carolina 500 here in 1966, had a four-lap speed of 116.523 miles per hour.

Clark, with only a day and a half to "sort" himself and the car out on a track he had never seen before, was clocked by his pit crew on one practice lap at 115.104 m.p.h.

Clark apparently was unable to diagnose his handling problems and at least two other Ford team drivers, all experienced on this speedway, took turns driving the car.

"We think we found the trouble," said one of the crew members assigned to the machine. "It had to do with some wheel bearings, and we will have him going strong Friday."

Also still not in the field, and not yet at competitive speed, is Lodovico Scarfiotti of Italy.

Committee Backing More Tariff Cuts

Washington (UPI)—A group of prominent businessmen urged the government Thursday not to let the free trade movement falter because of "protectionist reaction" to gains already made.

The Committee for Economic Development (CED) said legislation to make the recent Kennedy Round tariff cuts "fully effective" should be promptly enacted.

The United States should also begin making preparations for international talks aimed at eliminating nontariff trade barriers and at liberalizing trade policies toward poor countries, the CED said.

A blue-ribbon group of businessmen and educators, the CED has been fighting for freer trade since the end of World War II. Its latest statement appeared to be directed at both the Johnson administration and Congress.

Quotas Considered

Congress is currently considering proposed quotas on imports of such things as steel, textiles, oil, watches, meat, dairy products, lead and zinc, footwear and mink furs, as well as general legislation that could impose quotas on imports of a much wider variety of products. The administration is opposing the quota bills.

But President Johnson has failed to send Congress any bill to extend his tariff negotiating authority, which expired June 30. Nor has Johnson proposed legislation to carry out various parts of the Kennedy Round trade agreement.

"The momentum of trade liberalization should not be allowed to falter or be pushed back by protectionist reaction to liberalization already achieved," the CED said.

While another major round of tariff cuts is "neither feasible nor necessary" at present, the President needs some kind of authority to negotiate routine or "housekeeping" adjustments, the statement said.

"ASP Should Go"

The committee called for elimination of the so-called American Selling Price system of customs valuation for chemical imports. Elimination of the ASP system, which protects U.S. chemical producers from foreign competition, would provide the world with "specific evidence" that the United States favors doing away with all nontariff barriers, the CED said.

The committee said that "some liberalization" of adjustment assistance requirements may be needed to help companies and workers injured by imports. Administration officials have promised to propose more liberal requirements.

But as a rule, injured firms and workers should be aided through "general programs for coping with distressed areas and sectors" rather than through a special program related to imports, the CED said.

Frenchmen Stage Riots In Le Mans

Le Mans, France (UPI) — More than 4,000 Communist-inspired auto workers hurled empty wine and beer bottles, nuts and bolts and paving stones at riot police Thursday in a protest against President Charles de Gaulle's economic policies.

The wild donnybrook raged for five hours in this auto racing center and the air was filled with tear gas.

When order was finally restored about 8 p.m., parts of Le Mans looked like a battlefield. Streets were littered with debris and the atmosphere was choked with tear gas.

The protest was ordered by the big Communist-dominated General Confederation of Labor.

The organization has been plaguing the De Gaulle administration for months with street demonstrations that have often developed into riots in wide areas of the countryside.

The battle erupted at mid-afternoon as more than 10,000 workers left jobs at the giant government-owned Renault auto works and other factories and took to the streets. About half demonstrated peacefully.

GOP's Senate Leader Sees Rights Filibuster

Washington (UPI)—Senate Republican leader Everett M. Dirksen said Thursday the administration's civil rights package will be blocked this year by a filibuster.

"It won't be my doing but there will be a filibuster," the Illinois Republican said. And he predicted the filibuster would not be broken.

Dirksen, whose absolute resistance to open housing killed the 1966 civil rights bill, is acknowledged as the key to breaking any filibuster against civil rights legislation.

It was he who broke the long 1964 filibuster, and Dirksen's statement, "the time has come," led to passage of a civil rights package this year.

Chairman James O. Eastland, D-Miss., of the Senate Judiciary Committee, agreed with Dirksen. When asked whether the civil rights bill would trigger a filibuster, Eastland said, "I would suppose so." He said he hoped it would be effective.

Committee OKs 1.2 Million-Acre Recreation Area

Washington—A new federal outdoor playground stretching from the Canadian border and including a North Cascades National Park in the state of Washington, has been approved by the Senate Interior Committee.

The total area to be preserved would be 1.2 million acres of wilderness, mountain valleys, peaks and glaciers, all within the state of Washington. Of the total, 503,500 acres would be in the new national park.

Boost In Bombing Of Red North Shows Few Results In Vietnam

By FRED HOFFMAN

Washington (AP) — U.S. military officials are unable, after 2½ months of intensified bombing of North Vietnam, to furnish any hard evidence that this has significantly reduced the flow of war supplies to Communist forces in South Vietnam.

The best they come up with are some indicators that the heavier air attacks and broadened range of targets are making the Communists' task tougher, more costly in manpower, and more time-consuming.

Two of these signs involve: (1) greater reliance by the North Vietnamese on small watercraft to bypass cargo around smashed bridges holding up rail and truck movements, (2) some apparent temporary lack of ammunition for North Vietnamese antiaircraft guns.

These assessments are based on extensive interviews with many senior officers and military experts of all the armed services and of the Defense Department.

Records show that more than 30 new targets have been struck by U.S. raiders in North Vietnam since Aug. 8, when President Johnson authorized the widened air offensive.

These targets include at least a dozen important bridges which had been previously off limits because they are very close to Hanoi and Haiphong and within what had been at 25-to-30-mile "no bombing" zone along the southern border of China.

The targets opened up since then also have included rail yards and rail sidings where, military authorities said, the North Vietnamese had hoarded freight cars waiting for bad weather to make a sneak run between Hanoi and China.

On the approved list, too, were the port of Cam Paj, North Vietnam's third largest, and two MIG jet fields—Phuc Yen and Cat Bi, which had been spared in the past.

When it was evident that the North Vietnamese were switching some of their supply movement to sampans, barges and other watercraft, U.S. bombers were free to attack six different boatyards, boat repair setups, and a navy yard.

Also opened up to U.S. bombing were warehouse and storage areas less than two miles from the center of Haiphong and a complex where Russian supplied antiaircraft missiles and helicopters were assembled.

Sixteen new targets were approved the day before a Senate investigating committee opened hearings which underscored the split between the Joint Chiefs of Staff and other military leaders on the one hand and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara on the other regarding the scope and ground rules of the bombing campaign against North Vietnam.

57 Not Okayed

McNamara said at the time that only 57 targets recommended by the military chiefs had not yet been authorized. Air strikes had been approved for 302 other fixed targets, he testified.

"Whatever the merits of striking these 57 targets may be," McNamara said, "I believe it is clear that strikes against them will not materially shorten the war."

Since his testimony the Pentagon has refused to discuss how many of those 57 JCS — recommended targets have subsequently been approved and struck.

Targets Change

Officials have said that the 57 figure has lost its validity since then because the target list is constantly changing, with new objectives added, with priorities changed.

One knowledgeable source said that between 15 and 20 of the much — discussed 5 targets have still not been attacked.

Phuc Yen, the biggest MIG home base 18 miles northwest of Hanoi, was authorized about two weeks before the weather permitted the air strikes to be mounted this week.

5 Big Ones Yet

There are at least five major targets which still have not been visited by American bombers.

They include the Gia Lam airfield, just to the east of Hanoi. Gia Lam is the only remaining jet-capable airfield in North Vietnam which has not been bombed. McNamara has told Congress that the bombing of Phuc Yen might cause the North Vietnamese to shift their MIGs to Gia Lam.

Since the bombing of North Vietnamese MIG fields began earlier this year, the North Vietnamese have shifted the bulk of their air force into Red China. Currently, 51 of North Vietnam's 80 MIGs are reported in the sanctuary of Communist China.

'Vietnam Bombing Halt Necessary For Peace'

Washington (AP) — De-escalation of the U.S. military effort in Vietnam is required before the United Nations could move for peace with any chance of success, three former U.S. delegates to the world body said Thursday.

Even then, they added, there is no guarantee a settlement would result.

Testifying before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on resolutions urging U.N. action were Benjamin Cohen, Rep. Jonathan Bingham, D-N.Y., and Charles V. Yost.

Two Resolutions

The committee is considering two resolutions to urge U.N. action on Vietnam.

One, sponsored by Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield of Montana, would urge President Johnson to seek U.N. consideration of a Vietnam resolution that has been pending there for 21 months. This proposal now has the backing of 56 senators.

A second resolution, sponsored by Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., would call on Johnson to seek an emergency session of the U.N. Security Council on Vietnam. It would have the United States pledge in advance to accept any council dictates, such as an end to the bombing.

Suggests Stand Fast

Cohen, who participated in drafting the U.N. Charter as a State Department counselor, suggested the Morse resolution be expanded into a specific proposal for a military stand-fast arrangement in Vietnam pending negotiations.

Bingham proposed an invitation to arrange a peace conference be issued through the U.N. General Assembly to countries aligned with neither the United States nor the Communist bloc. This country should announce a ceasefire in advance of the talks, on condition the enemy observe it, he added.

Yost questioned whether the United Nations is capable, at this point, of dealing effectively with Vietnam. But, he said, if the U.S. military effort were eased and Hanoi failed to respond, "the General Assembly might then be willing to take a stand."

Mother, Son Suffer Injuries In Car-Truck Crash

A Lincoln mother and her child suffered minor injuries in a car-truck accident near 13th and Plum Thursday morning, police said.

Police said that Phyllis J. Jacobson, 25, of 2545 R and her son Curtis, 3, were taken to St. Elizabeth Hospital after the Jacobson car collided with a truck driven by Charles J. Wible, 62, of 7100 Burt.

Both mother and son were treated by the hospital for cuts and bruises and then released, police said.

Eight Are Injured In 3-Car Crash

Eight people suffered injuries in a three-car collision near 13th and D Thursday afternoon, seven of whom were riding in one car, police said.

Authorities said that the accident occurred when a southbound car, driven by Marvin Blomstedt, 30, of Palisade, started to turn left and collided with a northbound car, driven by Barbara Young, 19, of 1458 Garfield.

Blomstedt's car then spun around and collided with a third car driven by Gregory J. Young, 21, of 1012 S. 14th, finally coming to rest on the southeast corner of 13th and D, police said.

Officers said that it took two ambulances to carry the eight persons injured in the accident to St. Elizabeth Hospital. The injured included: Blomstedt, chest injury; Miss Young, cuts and bruises; Irene Witt, 54, Palisade, chest injury; Garrett Blomstedt, six months, Palisade, broken left leg; Lucinda Blomstedt, 22, Palisade, cuts on face and chest, Mike Witt, 11 Palisade, broken collarbone and cuts and bruises; Terry Blomstedt, 2, Palisade, cuts and bruises; and Loretta Blomstedt, 4, Palisade, cuts and bruises.

Hospital authorities said that five of the injuries were treated and released but three were held—Mrs. Witt, Lucinda and Garrett Blomstedt —and were listed in fair condition.

NU Foundation Transfers Lots To University

The University of Nebraska Foundation has transferred two lots at the northeast corner of 12th and Q to the Board of Regents for $104,384.47, according to a deed filed Thursday in the Lancaster County Register of Deeds office.

The property had been purchased in December, 1966, by the Foundation because the University Board of Regents did not have sufficient available funds at the time.

Credit Union Leader Must Be 'Dynamic'

"The president of a credit union should be a dynamic person, a leader in every sense," a Minnesota Credit Union League official told a Nebraska Credit Union banquet here Thursday night.

Kent Francis, a substitute for Sen. William Proxmire (D-Wis.), who was unable to attend the Lincoln meeting, told his audience that "even though a credit union may have a good manager, the president may be lacking in leadership capabilities."

But having a dynamic president, the credit union is assured of having a dynamic manager, Francis said.

"A president must function as a leader of the board and actually be the driving force behind the over-all decisions that govern the policy and preferences of the union," said Francis.

The Nebraska Credit Unions will continue their series of meetings Friday and Saturday at the Clayton House.

Absolute silence may be a problem in the space ship age. Complete silence is so nerve-wracking that space ships will carry recorded background sounds to keep crews from nervous breakdowns.

Many people are walking the streets today in semi-silence that may be causing nervous breakdowns. There is absolutely no need in having a hearing loss go uncorrected.

Teachers Told Fixed Intelligence Idea Is 'No Longer Tenable'

"The concept of fixed intelligence is no longer tenable," elementary teachers were told Thursday at the Association for Childhood Education International luncheon held in connection with the Nebraska State Education Association District I meeting.

Dr. Helen Heffernan, in speaking on "Releasing Creative Potential in Young Children," told the group that intelligence is largely an environmental artifact.

"I never like having to subscribe to the doctrine that when you're born you'r done for," she said.

Releasing Creativity

She emphasized that the success in releasing creativity begins with the fact schools must value human beings.

"It is more important how we treat children than what we teach children," she said.

"We need to help children use inquiry, problem solving and discovery techniques."

Noting that a creative dimension in education is dependent upon good teachers, Dr. Heffernan listed three qualities of great teachers: "Believe in us;" "Commitment to what they believe," and "Dedication to scholarship."

'Have Faith'

She said that teachers must assure youngsters that "we have faith in them," and a great teacher never does "what is expedient when principle is involved."

Creativity also depends upon a child's feeling of support, experiencing success and self-insight and freedom, according to Dr. Heffernan.

"Rise in Freedom in society will generate a rise in creativity," she said.

"Teachers fear freedom will result in chaos . . . . many of them have the philosophy, 'keep the lid on the lid of the kid.' " she added.

Drive Emphasized

Drive rather than intelligence quotient was emphasized by Dr. John Tibbett of Purdue University, who spoke to mathematics instructors.

He said the drive of a student has more effect on the student's achievement than his intelligence.

Dr. Tibbett challenged the teachers to write their own program with a team planning approach rather than just team teaching.

"You're better off if the students do the presentation. The classroom structure is the launching pad," he said.

He urged them to let the students make up tests.

"Don't worry so much about cheating as administration of the test," he said.

He said contrary to what was said at other sessions of the convention, "I don't believe high school students are apathetic."

"You have to get to them, and once you do, they're the greatest individuals in the world," he concluded.

'Professionals'

University of Nebraska Professor Dr. E. H. Goldenstein told teachers in a sectional meeting on determining educational policy that teachers "must be professionals" and as professionals must share in educational policy decisions.

Like hospital administrators, school administrators should not tell their professional staff members "what kind of educational diagnosis and prognosis to make nor what of remedial work to require of their students, he declared.

"School administrators should have as their primary goal facilitating and improving the work of their teachers" as the instructors strive to give their students the best education possible, according to Goldenstein.

The teacher's concern with policy-making cannot be limited to such matters as tenure, salaries, fringe benefits, and sick leave, it was emphasized.

'Greater Concern'

Goldenstein pointed out that "giving unions and professional associations more authority and responsibility may result in greater concern for the educational welfare of children that has been manifested in the policies of lay boards and superintendents."

He indicated that simply improving the quality of administrative personnel will not alone solve the need for better policy-making, nor would getting rid of the superintendent and having teachers deal directly with the school board.

"There is only one way to discover the consequences of vesting greater policy-making power in the hands of organized teacher groups," he declared. "That way is to try it."

Ivan Goochey was elected president of the Mental Health Association at its luncheon during the convention here. Miss Jean Jemison and Mrs. Carolyn Kling were named secretary and treasurer, respectively. All are from Lincoln.

Mrs. Ruth Mulder of the Children's Rehabilitation Unit at the Kansas University Medical Center, reported to the group on the phases of work in special education at the unit.

She reminded the teachers and mental health personnel that "labeling different disorders may be satisfactory to us, but it is not very helpful to the child or teacher."

Teachers need an "understanding of how to meet the needs of the disturbed child within the boundaries of the classroom and within their own limitations as teachers, she said.

Judge Delays Voc Tech School Issue Ruling

McCook (AP)—District Judge S. S. Sidner of Kearney will wait 10 days before ruling on the constitutionality of the enabling act providing for establishment of area vocational technical schools in Nebraska, he said Thursday.

Judge Sidner heard arguments in Red Willow County District Court in a case brought by five Red Willow County taxpayers against the Mid-Plains Vocational Technical School in North Platte.

The judge said he would allow both sides to submit additional briefs.

At question is the 14th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution providing for due process of law and equal representation. Sidner said he was troubled most by a question whether laws setting up representatives for the governing board of the school included provisions for equal representation of the district and a limit on the amount of time the representatives could serve.

Supreme Court Reference

Both sides made reference to the 1962 one-man, one-vote decision of the U.S. Supreme Court. Sidner indicated this point was of primary concern.

The suit against the Mid-Plains school was filed after a November, 1966, vote of an area comprised of 10 counties created the school district.

The five Red Willow County taxpayers alleged the law enabling its creation was unconstitutional.

Red Willow County voted against formation of the district by a 4½-1 margin, but the district was created by the overall vote of the 10 counties, and Red Willow was included. The only other country to vote against the district was Dundy.

The original law provided no way for a county to withdraw from such a district, but the 1967 Legislature provided for such action. Six of the 10 counties in the school area started on the petition method of withdrawal at a meeting in McCook Tuesday. The group set a target date of November, 1968, for an election on withdrawal.

Diocese Group Favors Housing Standards Code

The Human Relations Commission of the Lincoln Diocese has gone on record before the City Council in support of the proposed minimum housing standards ordinance.

Albert Hamersky, chairman of the commission, noted that the group had voiced its approval of the ordinance last spring when the City Council was deliberating the issue.

"During the course of the last few months," he said, "we have studied the issue even further and are more convinced that Lincoln could make real progress if it is approved by the voters."

Multi-Car Wreck Fatal For Italian

Milan, Italy (AP)—More than 100 vehicles piled up in thick fog on the Milan-Turin highway Thursday. One person was killed and 12 were injured.

Traffic police said two trucks collided first and car after car crashed behind them as other automobiles kept speeding toward the accident area in visibility down to little over 20 yards.

Also involved in the pileup was an ambulance rushing to aid the injured.

Stock Prices Rise In Active Market

New York (AP) — The stock market Thursday made its first advance in nearly two weeks. Trading was active.

Growth and glamor stocks were in the fore as the market reversed a remorseless down-trend.

The Dow Jones industrial average rose 4.16 to 89.89.

Of 1,489 issues traded, 701 rose and 541 fell. New highs for the year totaled 59 and new lows 71.

The speculative atmosphere heated up as witnessed by record volume of 8.29 million shares on the American Stock Exchange. This topped the previous record of 7.1 million on Oct. 29, 1929.

Volume on the New York Stock Exchange was 9.93 million shares compared with 10.31 million Wednesday.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks rose .7 to 321.3 with industrials up 2.2, rails off .2 and utilities off .3 to another new low for the year.

Eight of the 15 most active rose, five fell and two were unchanged.

Sperry Rand was the most active stock, off ½ at 56⅜ on 171,600 shares.

Among other active issues, A.J. Industries rose 1⅛, Occidental Petroleum 4, Republic Corp. 4 and McDonnell Douglas 1⅞.

Raytheon, up 8⅛ at 113, was one of the big gainers. The company recently reported record earnings.

General Electric rose 2, Gillette 2, Litton Industries 4⅜, National Cash Register 8¼, IBM 5¼, Control Data 4, International Telephone 2¼ and RCA 1¾.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index rose .42 to 94.94.

The New York Stock Exchange index gained 22 cents to $52.71.

EVERYBODY'S MONEY:

Migration Seen As Cause Of Acute Slum Problem

By Merryle S. Rukeyser

MERRYLE RUKEYSER

Urban Crisis

The urban crisis suffers from faulty diagnosis and fallacious cures.

Contrary to assertions by rioters, the acute slum problem is not primarily ascribable to the ill will of the whiteys. The northern cities, as a matter of fact, have been victims, in a sense, of their own idealistic commitment to the freedom of movement of people. Such free access from one U.S. community to another is a basic constitutional right.

However, the Founding Fathers never contemplated a mass migration on a scale of four million Negroes, since 1940, from southern farms to cities of the North and West. Instead of retraining farm workers released, by a technological revolution, Southern inertia shifted the problem to the North, where the ratio of urban Negroes rose from 10% to 20%, with the percentage of Negroes still greater in the largest cities.

In an analytical study of the migration, The Federationist, organ of the AFL-CIO, pointed out: "All of the new migrants to America's cities of the past quarter of a century — whites and Negroes, Puerto Ricans and Mexican Americans—have faced the difficulties of adjusting to a new and strange environment . . .

Negro Migrants

"The Negro migrants to the cities of the past quarter of a century have brought with them a history of slavery, segregation, lack of education, and, frequently, poor health, as well as suspicion of government authorities. On coming to the cities of the North and West, the new migrants have faced the discriminatory practices of those areas, lack of adequate housing and the impact of automation on job opportunities for uneducated, unskilled workers.

"The northern and western cities are suffering, in part, from the social ills and delinkuencies of the South . . ."

So far, the political remedies for fighting poverty and stopping the blight of housing have lagged behind the new deterioration.

The unsuccessful policies have reflected loose theorizing. Optimists predicted an unprecedented business boom because of an increase in the baby crop, but mere numbers alone have certainly not produced affluent living standards in India or China.

Population Shift

In the United States the anpopulation has been as significant as the increase in tomillion, compared with several hundred a year in the 1930's prior to World War II. But the redistribution of the populaion has been as significant as the increase in total numbers. New and better tools in farming have enabled a smaller ratio of the people to produce the needed food and fibers. Thus, the big growth of population has been in the cities, while there has been a shrinkage in rural areas.

The remedy does not lie in condoning frustration and Hippie escapism. The singling out of scapegoats is of value only if it throws light on the nature of the current challenge.

Basically, human beings are the most valuable national resource, and it's important to recognize that productive persons, who earn their way, contribute greatly to total wellbeing, whereas maladjusted persons permanently on a dole are a drag.

An efficient, disciplined, self supporting worker is a precious national asset. Apart from his personal human rights, he enriches communities and makes the various segments of cities better markets for goods and services.

The big shift in recent years has been from employment in making physical things to employment in the service occupations. Even the revolutionary new computers need human beings for programming and supervision. The time lag in education should be shortened, and school curricula should be altered drastically to meet the new requirements.

No one will quarrel with the contemporary agitation to accent love, but with good will must come retraining, cultivation of the spirit of self help and self discipline, respect for law and order and for due process.

(Mr. Rukeyser will be pleased to receive inquiries from readers concerning their financial problems. Letters with stamped self addressed envelopes should be sent in care of The Lincoln Star. Questions of general interest will be answered in the column. Others, to the extent time permits, will be handled by mail.)

Liquidation Hits Wheat Futures

Chicago (AP) — Liquidation weakened wheat futures prices up to 1½ cents a bushel on the Chicago Board of Trade Thursday, but soybeans and corn prices advanced.

Trade was, at best, slow after the opening and until the closing minutes. It appeared that traders were hesitant to assume a position for any length of time, pending a U.S. Department of Agriculture announcement after the close of business of allotment of feed grain acreage for 1968. The trade expected a cut in acreage.

Wheat futures had opened on a higher tone, influenced by good local and export buying. There was a report of new export authorizations to be announced within an hour after the opening, and when they failed to materialize prices declined.

Corn and soybeans trade was active at the outset on good commission house and local buying.

At the close, wheat was 1 to 1½ cents a bushel lower, December 1.52¾-⅞; corn was ⅜ to ¾ higher, December 1.14¾-⅞; oats were unchanged to ⅜ higher, December 72⅜ cents; rye was unchanged to ⅛ higher, December 1.20⅝; and soybeans were ¼ to 1 cent higher, November 2.63⅜-⅞.

Convict Bursts Into Women's Dorm; Police Barrage Makes Him Give Up

Olean, N.Y. (AP) — A convict burst into a women's dormitory at St. Bonaventure University Thursday, menaced several coeds, a woman dean and a security guard with a rifle and then fired on police closing in on him.

Minutes later, police gunfire resulted in the surrender of Gary F. Ayers, 21, whose parents live at Millport, near Elmira.

He was not injured although 11 bullets struck the automobile in which he was attempting to flee.

Ayers and Richard R. Gingrich, 21, of Annville, Pa., escaped Tuesday from White Hill State Correctional Institution at Camp Hill, Pa., a Harrisburg suburb.

Six Firearms

Police said they had four shotguns and two rifles plus ammunition they took during a burglary shortly after the escape.

The pair, driving a stolen station wagon, was halted by a police roadblock at a railroad bridge across Route 17, adjacent to the university campus.

Gingrich was captured within moments near the bridge. Ayers fled to the dormitory.

As he entered the lobby, he was met by Miss Catherine Keough, the dean.

"He was panting and very much out of breath and waving a gun at me," she said. "He told me the police were after him and he wanted a drink of water."

Phones Police

When he went to a rest room, she said, she telephoned police.

Later, Ayers went up the stairs and met Miss Dorothy Paretti, 20, a junior from Yonkers.

She said, "He looked out of a window and saw the police and then went berserk. He broke a window pane with his gun and fired at the police below."

Security guard Robert Gaines entered the building and found Ayers on the fourth floor. The youth took Gaines, who was unarmed, hostage and used him as a shield to leave the building.

Halted By Fusillade

Outside Ayers found a university-owned car, allowed Gaines to get away and then tried to escape in the vehicle. Police brought it to a halt with a barrage of shots.

Gingrich was turned over to Pennsylvania authorities.

Ayers was sent to the Cattaraugus County Jail in Little Valley on charges of grand larceny in the theft of the university car, reckless endangerment and unlawful imprisonment in the holding captive of Gaines, troopers said. He was held without bail.

Dow Chemical Not Bothered By Protests

© New York Times Service

New York—Campus demonstrations against the use of Napalm manufactured by the Dow Chemical Co. have not hurt the chemical maker's recruitment drive at universities, spokesman said Thursday.

These spokesmen added that the company had no intention of curtailing or changing the recruiting drive.

The large chemical producer has been the target of protests at many universities across the country. The arrival of corporate recruiters has usually signalled the start of the demonstrations.

Dow is believed to be the sole supplier of Napalm B to the Defense Department for use in Vietnam.

Spokesmen at the Midland, Mich., headquarters said Dow's sales of napalm to the government came to less than $6.5 million last year.

Removal Planned

Ankara, Turkey (AP)—The bodies of executed former Premier Adan Menderes and two other ministers will be removed from prison graves Nov. 30 and turned over to their families, the justice ministry announced.

NOT

Since 1959 have we seen a 1959 Ford Galaxie Fordor sedan that appeared to be new. That is until now. In our front row of our used car lot in downtown Hickman is a shiny black beauty that is all original. The entire automobile including the carpets, upholstery, finish & mechanical condition is unbelievable. It would be well worth your time to drive to Hickman to see this collector's item.
